

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER
... moderate tone at UN

Ike Swallows Hurt Pride at UN Invites Reds to Call Off Cold War

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

President Eisenhower's United Nations speech appears to be a virtual open invitation to Soviet Premier Khrushchev to call off the cold war. (See full details on Page 3.)

While Eisenhower, in his eight years as president, has suffered a lot of hard knocks as a result of Soviet policy, his farewell speech is more of an appeal for resumption of East-West talks to reduce tensions than a vehicle for abusing Russian actions.

In his disarmament proposal—that means he found immediately whereby the production of nuclear ingredients for atom bombs be halted—Eisenhower seems to be gently cutting a path which Khrushchev can follow without loss of face.

The proposal is neither so weighty nor so full of contention that Khrushchev can't find a way to accept it without compromising Russian military security.

Both Russia and the U.S. are known to have huge stocks of nuclear bombs, perhaps sufficient to blow up the world or a good part of it. Neither may see much profit in continuing this production. The only major power that might be against an immediate production halt is France—a Western ally still in the early stages as a nuclear power.

And Khrushchev may encounter little international support should he criticize Eisenhower's proposed expansion of financial and other aid for the United Nations, especially among the newly emerging African states. The growing confidence in the UN and its Secretary-General, Dag

Hammarskjöld, is illustrated by the crushing defeat Russia suffered in trying to censure Hammarskjöld in his actions to bring peace to the Congo.

By speaking first, Eisenhower could have opened a lot of wounds in Khrushchev's side. But he spoke only fleetingly of the frictions in Berlin and the shooting down of the American RB-47 reconnaissance plane off Russia's north coast last July.

The president uttered not a word to repeat accusations that Khrushchev has shattered the Summit Conference in Paris last May or that the Japanese riots which prevented Eisenhower from visiting Tokyo were Communist-inspired.

There was no mention of Communist agitation in Latin America nor of the American contention that Russia is influencing the actions of the Fidel Castro government in Cuba.

The tone of Eisenhower's speech is conciliatory. It seems to be saying the president is prepared to cast aside his hurt pride if the Soviet boss is prepared to do the same.

John D Definitely UN-Bound

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced late Thursday that he will go to New York Saturday to attend the UN General Assembly.

The prime minister said following a cabinet meeting that he will address the assembly Monday.

SIMILAR ANNOUNCEMENT
The announcement followed closely a similar one from London that Prime Minister Macmillan will go to New York this weekend where he is expected to address the assembly later in the week and also to confer with President Eisenhower, who called Thursday for resumption of disarmament negotiations.

THIRD LEADER
Mr. Diefenbaker was the third Commonwealth head to announce plans to attend the session. Western leaders other than Mr. Eisenhower earlier had given no sign that they would copy the heads of the Communist bloc by appearing at the UN.

Third Provincial Ferry To Be Ordered at Once

Bennett Makes Decision

In a surprise move yesterday Premier Bennett announced his decision to build a third B.C. government ferry to augment the sister ships Mv Sidney and Mv Tsawwassen.

He said business on the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen run had "been better than expected," but would not say how much profit, if any, the Vancouver Island mainland service has earned.

NO COST FIGURES
The service chalked up gross revenue of $206,781 during the first 15 days of September but no cost figures have been divulged.

He told a press conference he is recommending to the executive council an immediate start on construction of the third vessel.

$3,000,000 JOB
His recommendation is considered tantamount to an order to get the $3,000,000 job underway.

Tenders will be called as soon as specifications for the third vessel are laid down, a relatively simple task because they will not differ materially from specifications for the two existing ferries which went into service earlier this year.

The premier's announcement evoked happy astonishment in Victoria municipal, business and shipbuilding circles.

BUSINESS GOOD
"This is excellent," said Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell, "apparently business is good."

He said the rapid decision to expand the ferry service fleet shows that "Victoria apparently need have no fears that its transportation needs will be neglected."

Chamber of Commerce president M. Aubrey Kent said "this is wonderful news—I'm very glad to see the ferries doing so well."

He said he hopes a local yard will win the construction contract.

HOPE WE GET IT

Harold E. Husband, president of Victoria Machinery Depot Ltd., builder of the Mv Sidney, said "we are delighted we will bid on it if you may be sure, and I hope we get it."

Victoria Machinery was low bidder when tenders were called for the Sidney, and the firm's price was below that bid by Burrard Drydock Ltd. of Vancouver on the sister ship Mv Tsawwassen.

John A. Wallace, general manager of Yarrows Ltd., said his firm will also bid on the new ferry. His company entered a joint bid with Burrard Drydock in Vancouver when the first two vessels were built because Yarrows did not have facilities to construct the hull at its local yard.

But he said the company's recent $400,000 expansion project will now permit construction of the entire vessel.

Give Data On Control Church Asks

EDMONTON (CP)—The United Church of Canada Thursday night urged the Canadian government to provide information about birth control to countries requesting it.

General council, the church's highest court, approved a resolution which said the "population explosion has been the most neglected social issue of our time."

Train Escapes Firebug's Plot

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—Fire burned away 100 feet of a wooden Pacific Great Eastern Railway trestle Thursday, minutes before a passenger train was to cross. Arson was blamed.

A patrolman spotted the fire on the 600-foot-long, curving trestle over a ravine about nine miles north of here. He radioed the engineer aboard a following train carrying 33 passengers and it stopped at the edge of the trestle.

"We have no alternative but to suspect arson," general manager Joe Broadbent said. The fire was out of control by the time the patrolman saw it.

It took nearly three hours for firemen to arrive and begin extinguishing it.

Mr. Broadbent said it would take three days to complete repairs. Freight would be taken meanwhile to Squamish by barge, while passengers went by bus to Horseshoe Bay.

Ike's Address 'Conciliatory' Says Nikita

NEW YORK (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev said last night that he considered President Eisenhower's address before the United Nations as "conciliatory."

Khrushchev made the statement at a reception given by the Togo Republic.

"The president must have been ashamed of the U-2 incident since he did not mention it," Khrushchev said. "He only saw fit to mention the RB-47."

Khrushchev was asked what he thought was affirmative in the speech given by Eisenhower.

"Its conciliatory tone," he replied.

"There must be confidence among us," he said. "The world can not go on this way. The alternative is war and only a lunatic would start war."

Khrushchev earlier exchanged boos with residents of the Plaza, one of the most staid and fashionable hotels in the United States.

As Khrushchev arrived he was roundly booed and heckled by thousands gathered outside.

BOO, HISS

As he walked across the lobby of the hotel, many elderly resident tenants, mostly women, booed and hissed at him.

Khrushchev turned abruptly as he was entering an elevator and glowered.

"Boo," he shot back, then walked into the elevator that took him to the white and gold suite on the hotel's first floor.

WIDE RANGE

Khrushchev covered a wide range of topics during his talk with newsmen at the reception. He said that one member of the Soviet mission had been offered $8 to carry an anti-Soviet placard.

"Everything is based on money here," Khrushchev said. "Some people think they can do anything with money. I hear that there is a saying in this country that describes a woman as a 'million-dollar woman.' You see, people judge everything by money."

Bungling by Ottawa Shocks B.C. Leaders

By TERRY HAMMOND

Top provincial officials are secretly shocked at the bungling manner in which the possible appointment of Defence Minister George Pearkes as lieutenant-governor has been handled by Ottawa.

"It really makes you wonder a bit," said one government source yesterday. "If they can't handle a simple little thing like this what can they handle?"

RULED OUT
But in spite of speculation that the defence minister's appointment to the post had finally been ruled out by a humiliating disclosure that Conservatives were raising a $200,000 fund so he could afford it, the provincial government believes he is still the number one candidate.

Appointment of Mr. Pearkes to the post has been rumored for months and it was felt that Prime Minister Diefenbaker would have cleared the air weeks ago.

In the meantime, the defence minister's attitude towards the appointment was not improved when a former Diefenbaker aide, Vancouver lawyer Gowan Guest, made overtures to Con-

Africa Quake Starts Panic

BRUSSELS (Reuters)—Terrified crowds rushed through the streets Thursday when at least five severe earth tremors shook the town of Usumbura, in the Belgian trust territory of Ruanda Urundi.

Several persons were injured when occupants stampeded out of public buildings; cracks zig-zagged across walls.

Clash Coming

UN Battle On China Shapes Up

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—The United States and Russia headed last night into their first major clash of the "heads of government" at the United Nations General Assembly session on the question of a seat for Red China.

Despite President Eisenhower's deliberately low-keyed and propaganda-free address to the assembly yesterday morning, the start of the East-West word battle seemed inevitable in the 21-member general, or steering committee.

Salvation Army Says:

Sex Education Over-Taught

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lack of family life, especially at night, and over-teaching of sex education are the basic reasons for an increase in the number of unwed mothers in Canada, said Mrs. Wilfred Kitching, wife of the Salvation Army's world leader.

"They are younger now, too," she said in an interview here. "Many 13, 14 and 15-year-olds are in our homes."

Mrs. W. W. Booth, wife of the Salvation Army's Canadian leader, said two-thirds of the 1,800 women in Salvation

Army homes were under 16 years.

Mrs. Kitching added the idea of giving youth full self-expression, which began 20 years ago, has swung too far. Now children demand that freedom and the results are appalling.

"Mealtime is the period when the best work can be done with children, when the mothers and fathers are there to talk to them. It's then, too, that discipline can be imparted. But if the parents are not there, what can the children learn?"

Abuses 'Shrinking' Unemployment Fund

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—C. A. L. Murchison, Unemployment Insurance Commissioner, said Thursday abuses in connection with unemployment benefits are helping shrink the country's Unemployment Insurance Fund and are causing "concern."

"If they are to stop," he told a press conference, "decisions will have to be made by the government that will be politically damaging."

Lions Gate Dive Fatal

VANCOUVER (CP)—A young woman plunged off the Lions Gate Bridge Thursday and died in the water below.

Old Man Murdered, Girl Cook Charged

WILLIAMS LAKE, B.C. (CP)—A 19-year-old girl cook was charged with murder Thursday after her elderly employer was found shot to death on his lonely ranch.

Veronica Gladys Kroner was remanded for eight days on a charge of murder after the body of Louis Hudgens, 74, was found Wednesday in a creek near the ranch house of his prosperous Woodjam Ranch, near here. Police took custody of a 30-30-calibre rifle.

Independence Too Early For U.S.?

LONDON (AP) — This letter from a reader appeared in the Evening Standard Thursday:

"I overheard two women talking about the New York anti-Khrushchev demonstrations.

"One said: 'The Americans frighten me! We should never have allowed them independence. They're obviously not ready for it.'"

Disarmament Nikita's Theme

By HENRY SHAPIRO

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Premier Khrushchev is expected to devote the major part of his speech to the United Nations Assembly today to what he has termed "the question of questions" — disarmament.

"Disarmament is what brought Khrushchev here," a member of the Soviet delegation said, "and there is nothing more important than that."

Soviet sources, while expressing disappointment that President Eisenhower's address to the assembly "contained nothing basically new," indicated that the Soviet premier is likely to submit some interesting variations of his plan for total disarmament.

SEVERAL DRAFTS
Khrushchev, it was learned, has already prepared several drafts of his speech but he will compose his final version only after studying the president's address.

Since Soviet sources have promptly characterized Eisenhower's speech as "moderate in tone," Khrushchev was expected to be equally moderate and conciliatory.

There was much in the president's speech the Soviet premier was likely to find acceptable.

'STRICT CONTROL'

While Khrushchev may make some concession on the knotty problem of effective controls of disarmament he is expected to cling to the old Soviet position — no controls without disarmament. The Russians have long been advocating an immediate agreement in principle on disarmament the implementation of which is to be carried out "under strict international control."

They are also now in favor of establishing an international police force under the aegis of the United Nations to supervise each of the three stages of their total disarmament plan.

Eisenhower Urges United Nations:

'Isolate Africa from Cold War'

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — President Eisenhower said Thursday new countries of Africa must be kept out of the cold war in their "explosive emergence into nationhood" and he challenged the Soviet Union to join in a campaign of progress under the United Nations.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev listened intently and impassively as Eisenhower called for a UN program of assistance to Africa, renewal of disarmament negotiations, peaceful use of outer space and nuclear weapons control.

And the U.S. president pleaded with the African states to use existing or new "regional machinery" to avert an arms race and thus spare their continent the ravages of war.

NOT THROUGH WORDS

While asking Russia to resume disarmament negotiations broken off by the Communist side at Geneva some months ago, he once again declared that disarmament cannot be brought about through words and propaganda — or without mutual inspection.

Eisenhower — speaking firmly — gave unqualified support to the UN and repeatedly mentioned the work of Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld, who has been under attack by the Communists.

UN efforts to bring peace to the Congo had been "flagrantly attacked" by a few nations for selfish purposes and "the issue thus posed in the Congo could well arise elsewhere in Africa."

"It is the smaller nations that have the greatest stake in the effective functioning of the United Nations," Eisenhower said.

On Africa, Eisenhower suggested a pledge for all countries "to refrain from intervening by subversion, force, propaganda or any other means."

The five "ingredients" of his African program: non-interference; help in assuring security without wasteful and dangerous competition in armaments; emergency aid to the Congo; international assistance in shaping long-term African development programs; UN aid for education.

Cut Arms, Pay UN

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Brazil proposed yesterday that the nations of the world set up a system for pooling savings on arms reduction and depositing them in a United Nations international development fund.

Brazilian Foreign Minister Horacio Lafer, opening the policy debate of the 45th UN General Assembly, called on the body to set up a special UN conference for adopting such a system.

Tito Slashes West In First UN Speech

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The anti-Western tone of President Tito of Yugoslavia yesterday followed the tough Soviet-style line to denounce Western policies as warlike and demand a seat for Communist China in his maiden address before the United Nations General Assembly.

The Yugoslav leader, whose "independent road to socialism" theory led to a break with the Kremlin made Yugoslavia the maverick Communist nation, spoke after a private 10-minute chat with Soviet Khrushchev — their fifth meeting since 1949.

Tito followed President Eisenhower to the rostrum and later scheduled a meeting with the chief executive at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

FOSTER COLONIALISM
Tito accused circles in the West of fostering "colonialism" in Africa, reviving militarism in West Germany and continuing the war in Algeria.

Praise in West Criticism in East

LONDON (Reuters) — President Eisenhower's United Nations speech Thursday received a favorable initial reaction in western Europe and criticism from behind the Iron Curtain.

In a dispatch from New York, the official Soviet news agency Tass said that while Eisenhower talked about the Congo, he said nothing about attempts of Belgian colonialists to take independence away from that young African state.

Tass said the American president "laid emphasis on arms control rather than disarmament" and he virtually buried the idea of total and general disarmament.

FORWARD-LOOKING
British official quarters pronounced Eisenhower's speech "positive, constructive and forward-looking."

The president, they added was not polemical and did not show "cold war spirit."

French officials close to President Charles de Gaulle expressed satisfaction with Eisenhower's appeal for an offensive against poverty in Africa and the rest of the world.

Warmly welcoming Eisenhower's speech, West German government sources said his proposals for Africa pretty well jibed with West German views.

Straw in the Wind

THE resignation of the president of the B.C. Government Employees' Association's Victoria branch is an example of the serious internal trouble unions are bound to encounter through organized labor's alliance with the CCF.

While as individuals the employees of a government may vote and, in B.C., work for the party of their choice, they should not as a group be obliged to aid morally or financially any one party, whether that party supports or opposes the government of the day. Such a concept of group engagement in politics is contrary to the concepts of public service.

That, however, is only one aspect of the much larger problem which this ill-starred merger creates for the individual.

Between organized labor and the CCF there is only a tenuous bond of purpose. The Canadian Labor Congress and its affiliates exist for the protection of those who work for wages and salaries. The CCF represents itself as being "for the workers" but its objectives go far beyond such trade union considerations as wages, hours and conditions of employment. Its political aspirations include nationalization of many industries.

Among the unions and guilds there are many who have no use for nationalization. Already there has been opposition in some quarters not just from individuals but by formal resolution from unions about to be absorbed by the CCF.

Yet these men and women by their union membership and generally speaking by their dues will be pledged to aid the cause of a political party with whose policies they are not in agreement. Internal dissatisfaction is thus bound to occur within unions—has already occurred in some instances—and may ruin them and set the solidarity of the trade union movement back immeasurably when the implication of the course to which they are committed becomes thoroughly understood.

While it is true that a member may "contract out" of financial support for the political arm of his union, that for a conscientious believer in democratic principles is no solution to his problem.

Under the principle of the secret ballot no man may be required to disclose the name of the person or party for which he votes. By the same standard he should not be obliged to disclose the name of the party for which he does NOT intend to vote. The implication of "contracting out" plainly is that the member doing so is opposed to his union's policies.

Even in Canada that could have serious consequences for politically unsympathetic members of some of the big unions.

It would be a sad day for the nation if through fear of reprisals or blacklisting union members felt compelled to contribute dues for political activities foreign to their personal beliefs.

A Real Dilemma

THE wisdom of confining Premier Khrushchev to Manhattan—humorously referred to by him as "house arrest"—in a shrewd by-play—might be questioned but the dilemma of the U.S. in playing host to the mixed bag attending the UN sessions is a real one. No doubt the restrictions placed on the Soviet leader—and Fidel Castro also for that matter—have an element of retaliation but the security problem is a major consideration.

New York is full of persons with good reason for an "anti" complex towards some of the visiting leaders. There are Latin Americans and Europeans who have small cause to cheer for Communist or totalitarian chiefs, and they are volatile and easily roused. Nor is their presence an indictment of the U.S.A. but the reverse. It is in America they have found refuge from the tyranny that they see represented by dictator country delegates.

Theoretically the U.S.A. is not playing host to the UN menace. The UN is supra-territorial. Nevertheless the UN is situated in New York and obviously America is expected to provide the needed protection for all UN participants. What with the personality of certain foreign heads and their shenanigans—Castro's staged hotel incident is an example—security is a major headache for American police forces.

One British newspaper suggests the UN headquarters should be moved because the U.S. does not distinguish between its rights as a nation and its duty to the UN. That is an easy view adopted by persons not faced with the problem and it lacks understanding of American difficulties. It is the character of the foreign leaders in question that evokes the dangers of disturbance, not the attitude of the U.S. as a host country.

Intriguing nevertheless is the proposal that Quebec might be a suitable site for the UN. Canada has a record of stability and public order that might induce the desired calm atmosphere, although its proximity to the U.S. might merely shift the problem to this side of the border. It would be difficult to keep the same "antis" out on any similar future gathering of dictator chiefs at the UN.

For all its troubles the U.S.A. would scarcely agree to a shift of the UN elsewhere, however. This would mean a duplication of the enormous cost of establishing the world organization in New York. It happens also that the U.S. pays the biggest shot to keep the UN going; without its financial backing the UN would fold up.

Huckster Number One

MR. KHRUSHCHEV is a man of many moods, never underlined so distinctly as by his mercurial conduct in New York this week.

On Tuesday he was the serious student of international affairs—attending solemnly the long hours of the formal session of the United Nations Assembly, performing minor duties usually delegated to a deputy.

There he apparently allowed his high regard for the world organization to overrule his usual aim of being the centre of attraction by remaining modestly, even humbly, in his back row seat throughout the business of the day.

But on Wednesday he had changed. He became the ebullient headline seeker, the focal point of attention. Gone was his serious mien, his modesty—and his silence. He stood on his New York balcony wisecracking with newsmen, flinging out heavy-humored, but nevertheless telling, jokes about his American reception. He even made his lieutenant, Soviet UN ambassador Gromyko, the butt of one of his sallies.

Unchallenged in the field of international headline stealing, Mr. Khrushchev's moods have again paid off handsomely.

Despite the tacit agreement between a number of American newspapers and other news-gathering agencies to keep him off the front page, the Soviet Premier's tactics have defeated the move. He has, in fact, beaten the hucksters at their own game.

The African-Asian Bloc

By ED SIMON, Canadian Press Staff Writer

RUSSIA'S resounding defeat in the United Nations general assembly debate on the Congo has been acclaimed by the West as a sign of the growing power and maturity of the independent African states.

At the decisive moment, Soviet diplomacy in Africa showed itself to be clumsy, ham-handed and so lacking in flexibility that the Russians were unable to extricate themselves in time to escape the foregone conclusion of the assembly's overwhelming verdict against them.

But some Western observers, in the first flush of victory, are drawing conclusions from Russia's discomfiture that will have to be revised sharply in the days ahead.

The essential point to be grasped is that the African and Asian powers, in giving their mandate to Hammarskjöld, have not espoused the Western cause in the cold war. They have merely reaffirmed their refusal to be drawn into it.

Britain and the United States have suffered in the past from their failure to accept the sincerity of professions of neutrality by the leaders of newly-independent states. Russia was able to sit back and profit from their blunders. In Africa, the shoe is on the other foot.

Any effort by the West to capitalize on Russia's African setback by attempting to pull the continent into its own camp would merely destroy the effect of Nikita Khrushchev's miscalculation.

Another fallacy arising from the Congo vote is to overestimate the power of the African-Asian bloc to influence other international issues.

If its members stick together, it certainly is capable of carrying the day in the confines of the UN assembly. But the UN, in spite of its unprecedented authority in the Congo, has not yet achieved supra-national status.

Its treatment of Khrushchev's African aspirations has shown that its moral authority is not to be despised. But the Russian leader, by risking the world's approval when he broke up the summit conference last May, has shown himself capable of defying moral judgments.

Thinking Aloud Everybody's Hand Out

... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

THE idea of dying for one's country is not quite so popular as it might have been, I suppose, a few hundred years ago. Life long ago was a precarious thing at best; for the plebes because they were ill cared for and for the patricians because military combat was their code. Longevity was unusual and an early death was the norm for most people. Life as a result was cheaply regarded.

It has become more precarious as the lifespan has lengthened and more people enjoy a better share of this world's goods, even though the mortality rate on the highways would not suggest so. The complacency in this respect is paradoxical. Older people, perhaps, secure in the likelihood they won't be called on to make the sacrifice, can afford to talk more easily about dying for one's country. Young people with the years looming attractively ahead can be excused for not being so enthusiastic about cutting their short.

In some circles the airman Powers has been condemned, apparently because he didn't offer himself to the chopping block with the abandon, say, of early patriots of his country. True enough it was early national heroes who put fibre and backbone into the character of their respective nations, but in this instance Powers' country had already admitted its guilt in the matter. It would have been dramatic but a bit redundant for him to wave a flag and declare himself ready to die for the honor of his country.

Men still go forth and do battle for their countries, as the long lists of two world wars amply testify. They do not go rushing forward in the expectation of death, however. It is no reflection on them that each man secretly thinks, or hopes anyway, that no bullet has his number on it. A soldier of our ilk may be valiant enough in action but he is not anxious to die nevertheless; he wants to be able to go back home when it's all over. It is this entirely natural desire that makes things rather awkward at times, as for instance when opposing an enemy whose soldiers believe that death in battle will bring them two hours apiece in paradise. The odds are then very much tougher.

This has nothing to do with courage, which is a complex subject anyway. Men may be brave in different ways. The man without fear, for instance, is not brave. If fear is utterly foreign to his nature he has nothing to overcome. Fear among troops is normal. Many a warrior feels shaky at the knees or empty in the stomach before going into action—most of them are affected by nerves at some time or another—but they manage to overcome their diffidence. How well they do so the history books record.

Still and all the fact is that even in battle, when the chances of death are at least even, young men are not too keen on dying for their country. They love their country well enough to do their damndest for it in emergency; they may disregard danger and count not the risk, but they aren't really anxious to give up their lives. If this is a fault it must be one common to most civilized countries.

Giving up one's life in advance, polemically as it were, is therefore a somewhat academic question. It will never be answered until the die is cast and the call comes. If in less heroic mould than that fashioned by early and much revered national heroes, patriotism still has its virtue however. The tone may be quieter but that is all. One suspects there are yet men who for all their love of life would rather die on their feet than live on their knees.

A Nation Run on Subsidies

By T. L. R., from London

ONE of the problems of the modern world is the gentle art of subsidy. Some of it is pretentious and magnificent, some of it obscure and rarely recognized for what it is. English book publishers, for example, are highly indignant at the merest suggestion that they are subsidized, but one cannot help wondering just how prosperous they would be without the heavily subsidized libraries and almost completely subsidized education system, which are the two heaviest buyers of books.

On the other hand institutions like the Royal Opera House at Covent Garden consider themselves grossly underprivileged because they receive only $1,500,000 a year to provide approximately 280 performances each year of grand opera and ballet, and cry out loudly for bigger and better subsidies.

Our nine symphony orchestras scratch around looking for contributions from municipalities, the central government and commercial and industrial patrons and still find themselves hard pressed to keep alive. The 65 live theatres which manage to maintain a reasonably permanent existence in Britain these days are well below the headline except for a few in London. They stagger along from crisis to crisis with small crumbs of governmental and municipal aid and an occasional scrap of meat from the television companies who are making so much profit that they don't know what to do with it.

Many British films are made on government loans, some of which are repaid and some of which are not, but the loan fund has been exhausted more than once. Our art galleries are given government "contributions" to help them enrich world art dealers in boosting the price of old pictures—some of which at least are of dubious artistic value. Crumbs of help are offered to modern artists.

The most heavily subsidized industry of all is the defence industry. Most of our heavy engineering and shipbuilding industries are heavily subsidized in the form of government expenditure on research and by means of government orders for equipment much of which is out of date before it is delivered. Indirect subsidies come via the post office and the BBC, both of whom are dependent upon the taxpayer for their income, though much of it comes in direct payment for value received.

Every time we travel by train, bus or underground, every time we fly in an airplane, the government chips in with a little bit to help us on our way. Most of the food we eat, from eggs to wheat, potatoes to tomatoes, has a portion of government bounty in the interests of British agriculture. Every time we visit the doctor or obtain a prescription from the druggist the government chips in with a substantial portion of the cost. Our teeth and hearing aids, artificial limbs and wigs are blessed with governmental bounty. Indeed one of the great problems of the modern age is to find out what is not subsidized.

Motor cars, gas, beer, tobacco and perfumes are amongst the biggest revenue producers and help to provide the subsidy funds. We pay heavily for the privilege of having an income, which goes to meet the salaries of more than a million civil servants—central and municipal. Newspapers and commercial television have their own system of financing without invading government funds, but many of our biggest construction firms look to government contracts to provide them with their bread and butter lines. More than half the houses built in Britain receive a government grant of one sort or another.

Our purchase tax, inherited from some demon in Canada who invented the sales tax, increases the cost of commodities we buy for ourselves so that the government will have a little more for general distribution through the subsidy market. The man who smokes, drinks and runs an automobile is the real patron of modern Britain—he does more to subsidize the arts, agriculture, the universities and industry than any other citizen and broadly may be least appreciative of the benefits.

The facts of modern life involve the intervention of government at virtually every point. The smoker makes possible grand opera and symphony orchestras, the drinker produces missiles, the motorist provides schools and hospitals—as well as hospital patients.

Some day perhaps an economist will arise who will work out the cost of everything without government intervention. Our gas bill would be cut by half, the cost of our automobiles by a third, our tobacco would cost about one-sixth of its present price—but we would have to pay more for a seat at the opera, a modest fee to send our children to school, a few cents to consult the doctor (to give him the equivalent of his national health earnings) and so on. But it must be true that we would receive more money than we paid out. Amongst other things we could turn the better part of a million civil servants out to grass or into productive industry, but the idea that an individual is the best judge of how to spend his own money seems to have vanished in the graveyard of two world wars.

The mysterious "they" seem to have taken possession not only of our money but of our artistic souls. "They," bless them, give us our opera, our symphony concerts, our health, our agriculture, our public transport, our coal at thoroughly uneconomic prices.

One of these days someone will wake up to the fact that if "they" did not take so much from us in taxation we might willingly pay the economic price for their benevolence and still have a bit in the bank or to invest in industry. But so many of our beloved "theys" would be out of a job that our humanity could not withstand the suffering. So modern youth dedicates itself to the noble task of becoming a they—for his own comfort and our inestimable benefit.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

WHEN I got a flat tire on one of those wonderful stretches of great modern thoroughway in which there is no service whatever for miles and miles, I was given a lift to the next service station by a passing motorist who was kind enough to respond to my signals to the heedless passing swarm.

And I was unnerved, on enquiring, to learn that he was a provincial constable on his day off.

As we rejoined the traffic stream, he said:

"I'm conducting a little experiment. The law here, as in most parts of the continent, is that the motorist shall keep a certain specified distance from the car ahead. I am trying to keep that distance. And every time I do so, some motorist from behind rushes up and cuts in, in order to occupy the little space I have allowed in conformity with the law. I bet there isn't one motorist in a thousand who, on seeing the legal distance kept between the two cars ahead of him, doesn't invariably jump ahead to occupy that space."

"I have tried to interest my superiors in a little scheme. I want constables in plain clothes and plain cars to travel the highways maintaining the legal distance and taking the licence numbers of all drivers who perform this little trick, and have them socked a good fine. I could collect hundreds in a 50-mile drive. If that one rule, regarding distance between cars, were properly observed, accident rates would be reduced by 50 per cent."

Do, Don't, Stop, Go

(From The Toronto Star)

TRAFFIC signs really are impudent. A full-grown adult, even one who may boss an industrial empire or corps of troops, takes without a whimper all sorts of rude orders from a mere mechanical gadget or painted street sign. Go, Stop, Do Not Enter, Walk, Don't Walk.

And he doesn't even try to talk back and say: "Darned if I'll walk." This proud inheritor of ages of freedom-fighters becomes an obsequious automaton. But if the man's own father barked at him in such a fashion, he would probably punch the peremptory old geezer in the nose.

In earlier days, before the car wheeled into our ken, the most gross commands uttered on signs were "Post No Bills" and "Keep Off the Grass." Usually the latter was prefaced by "Please." Even the advice: "No Spitting Allowed" was a whit courtly; at least the notice didn't read: "Don't Spit."

For the sake of order and safety, today's multitude of raucous traffic commands must probably be endured. It is too much to expect a sign to read: "Your own law requires you to stop. Please respect it." Or: "This being a one-way street, motorists are cordially enjoined not to enter here."

However, some other countries manage their traffic injunctions with a little subtlety. In the Middle East, for instance, "Walk" and "Don't Walk" lights have pictures instead of words. A man is shown hurrying along as fast as his legs will carry him; or, stopped, arms out.

Literacy is not as high in such countries as in Canada, which is one reason for the picture language. But have Canadians learned to read only to have their sense of liberty insulted by words on traffic signs? Ah, progress! Progress!

Purpose in Mind

THOSE who criticize new Canadians won't be too happy in hearing the comment of an education official on the results of Grade 13 examinations.

New Canadian pupils stand high in honor rolls and this is why as explained by the official: "New Canadians know what the values are. They have the tendency to know where they are going and how to get there through hard work."

—WINNIE STAR.

Cluster Lights

Mr. Kenneth Reid must feel very assured to step out and destroy all the downtown cluster lighting, even to the extent of not having them connected to the new underground wiring so that if council does approve of the cluster lights remaining, they will have to tear up the sidewalks again to connect them.

Surely he does not think the people of Victoria will stand for the ballyhoo that he will save us $32,000 a year and meanwhile drain all the $200,000 the council has saved from land sales. How can he be so naive as to destroy what we of Victoria like and what our tourists enjoy because they haven't got anything as nice? City officials in the past have lost their positions because they cut down a few old trees.

If Mr. Reid feels the present lighting is not adequate perhaps he could put in larger bulbs.

Essence of Democracy

The current controversy respecting Senator Kennedy's religion places Christ once again on the cross. Is it not sufficient that all these denominational pathways lead to the same footstool?

The principle that guides a Christian should and does apply to all Christians, no matter what form their belief takes, neither does it follow that a non-church-goer is not a Christian. Religion can be the goal of any line of thought sincerely pursued.

It is the essence of democracy to respect another inherent Christian belief, for are any of us immune when principle is put to the test? Tolerance is synonymous with freedom. Senator Kennedy and Richard Nixon are going the same way, their professed religions are equally sound.

Total Disarmament

It seems to me that any talks at the UN on disarmament should include outlawing and destroying of gases and bacteria as well as nuclear and other weapons—otherwise any agreement reached will be useless.

DOROTHY SPURR.

Fallout Shelters

Since we are informed that already over 1,800 persons have applied for the booklet issued by our government on how to build fallout shelters, we are justified in assuming that many are considering building one. It makes us wonder how best to proceed.

In case of hurried need shall we take in our budgie birds, our canaries, cats and kittens, our pet dogs, the large collie and the larger Labrador?

And what about the cows, sheep, hogs, and hens? When the danger is over and we come out looking for breakfast will there be fresh eggs and cream, fresh sweet milk for the babies and children, and from whom will we get our bread for toast?

Would it not be safer if our leading statesmen were a little more tolerant of each other with a view toward making fallout shelters unnecessary?

Spur-of-Moment Theft Returns Pair to Prison

Two men just recently discharged from prison were on their way back yesterday, as the result of a "spur of the moment" theft.

Steve Remington and Donald William Thompson, both of no fixed address, pleaded guilty in Saanich police court to a joint charge of theft of a $99.50 transistor radio from Quadra Appliance Service Ltd., 3514 Quadra, Tuesday.

Investigation by Saanich and city detectives led to the arrests the same evening and recovery of the radio from a downtown locker.

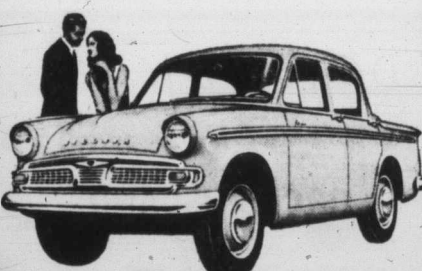

Magistrate William Ostler, after hearing lengthy records read out for both men, sentenced each to 15 months in jail.

Appearing in Esquimalt court yesterday morning, Leonard Robert Smith, 1337 Lyall, pleaded guilty to impaired driving. He was fined $250 and remanded to Monday for a probation report on disposition of his driver's licence.

Wesley John Place, 20, 76 Cadillac, was fined $20 in city court for being a minor in possession of liquor.

Russian System Impressive 'But It's Not for My Child'

By JACK HUTTON

I would not want a child of mine to go through the Russian school system even though their schools impressed me.

That is my opinion after visiting the USSR for two weeks and one summer studying their education documents and philosophy.

I hope I won't sound ungracious, because I met some very sincere teachers. And the Russian student apparently had a dedication which too many of our students lack.

Lower Level

Distinguished American and Canadian educators have reported that the Soviet university graduate apparently surpasses ours because of a longer training period.

I can't quarrel with them. What bothers me, however, is the system at a much lower level—between Grade 1 and Grade 11, the end of the Russian secondary school.

Soviet education philosophy, according to several observers, is based upon the teachings of two men—Ivan Pavlov, the physiologist who taught us about conditioned responses, and Anton S. Makarenko.

The Big Red Schoolhouse

Makarenko was an outstanding Russian teacher who believed that the parent alone was incapable of raising his child. And he believed school was for more than basic education.

In his book For Parents, published in 1937, he said: "Either the child breaks out of the domestic prison or you produce a freak."

I am afraid that when a child of mine entered the Russian school system at 7 (after three years of kindergarten) I would know his future really wasn't mine to decide.

Because no Russian gets anywhere without education, it is highly respected, almost revered. Our students know many adults who are highly successful without much formal schooling.

Soviet Students

Cut Off from Past

TORONTO (CP)—By 1961, one-third of all children in the Soviet Union will be in boarding schools away from the influence of past generations, a United States educationist said Wednesday.

Dr. William H. E. Johnson, chairman of the department of foundations of education at the University of Pittsburgh, told the Canadian Education Association conference the Soviet education system is "spartan."

By means of the boarding schools, the Soviet authorities hope to bypass the influence of older generations and to change the culture of federated states totally within one or two decades.

This is one way to change the culture—fast," he said.

Dr. Johnson recently toured Russian educational facilities. Soviet parents are "sold on" the educational programs, Dr. Johnson said. "They realize that if they indoctrinate their children against the regime, the children would be ruined."

North America is supposedly they are going. We don't realize in the middle of a Great Depression what we already have. But most adults are more preoccupied with what the 1960 cars will look like.

Called 'Egghead'

Russian children sternly discipline one another. If their marks begin to slip, all too often, for students, all a class make an "egghead" if his marks start getting too high.

Russian students have to do manual labor. I personally think our students would appreciate their $2,000,000 schools more if they washed them once a month, like their Russian counterparts.

The Russians know exactly what they want and where

Superiority Complex Must Go, Says Crump

N. R. CRUMP
... heady illusion

real growth and real social progress based on increased productivity, not only of plants and equipment but of men.

SECRET FEAR
Mr. Crump also said there are some in Canada who "cherish secretly fear of technological advance and adhere stubbornly to the economic status quo in the mistaken notion that prosperity can be obtained by freezing progress."

"Technological advance in the face of the Red Menace is a prime condition of survival," he said.

New York Sag Puts Damper On Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—A decline in New York put a damper on the stock market here Thursday as industrial stocks backed away from earlier gains and closed on a note of indecision.
On index, industrials were up 38 at 486.38, golds ahead 69 at 83.65, base metals were off 69 at 151.90, and western oils eased 62 at 85.48.

Among banks, Imperial and Toronto-Dominion both gained 1/4 at 60 1/4 and 55 1/4, while Bank of Montreal lost 1/4 at 54 1/4.
Great Lakes Paper dropped a point 1/4 at 38 1/4, while Abitibi gained 1/4 at 38 1/4.

Steels were a little more cheerful, Algoma and Dominion Bridge were up 1/4 at 31 1/4 and 16 1/4.
Calgary Power jumped two points at 24 but did not reflect the lack of confidence in the utilities group, where International Utilities dropped 1/4 at 34 1/4, B.C. Power eased 1/4 at 33 1/4, and Bell Phone and Power Corporation both lost 1/4 at 46 1/4 and 47 1/4.

Mines went lower behind Noranda with a drop of 1/4 at 39 1/4. Dome was a bright spot among golds with a win of 1/4 at 20 1/4.
Western oils were active on the down side, following the example set by Calgary and Edmonton and Pacific Petroleum, both off 1/4 at 15 1/4 and 10 1/4.

Volume Small
NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market declined a little Thursday on the smallest volume in nearly a year.
Turnover was 1,970,000 shares compared with Wednesday's 2,930,000.

The start of the Jewish religious holidays was the main reason cited.
Steels, rails, non-ferrous metals, chemicals, drugs, electronics and most aircrafts lost ground.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 0.2 to 211.60, with the industrials off 1.20, the rails off 0.60 and the utilities up 10.
Heavily-traded Minute Maid was up 1/4 as directors of that company and of Coca Cola approved merger of the two firms. Coca Cola gained 1/4.

On the Canadian side, gains were made by Canadian Pacific Distillers Seagrams and Walker Gooderham.
And on a declining American exchange, Canadian Marconi lost 1/4. Preston East Dome added 1/4.

Montreal Down
MONTREAL (CP)—Prices remained flat at the close of moderate trading on the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges Thursday.
Closing averages: banks up 0.02 at 55.77, utilities off 0.2 at 141.4, industrials down 1.1 at 264.5, combined off 0.8 at 223.4, papers down 2.1 at 416.4 and golds off 0.48 at 83.12.

Eddy Paper led losers, down one point at 57. Brown Co. at 13 1/4 and Great Lakes Paper at 49 1/4 dropped 1/4.
Building Products added two points at 32 to lead winners. Calgary Power gained 1/4 at 23 1/4, and gains of 1/4 were made by B.A. Oil at 28 and Canadian Oil at 21 1/4.

London Recovers
LONDON (Reuters)—There was a further recovery in London stock markets yesterday. Best prices were not always held but selective buying of industrial equities produced fairly widespread gains.
Gilt-edged securities were firm and dollar stocks improved.

Mining markets were generally quiet but golds improved slightly. Coppers were dull and oils were mainly lower.

Ministers Get Raise

EDMONTON (CP)—The United Church of Canada Thursday voted some of its ministers a pay increase of $300 a year over the next two years.

The increase will apply to the church's 800 ministers on minimum salary. They now receive $2,500 a year plus $500 travel allowance and a furnished house.

U.S. Plane Crash Takes 29 Lives

NAHA, Okinawa (AP)—A four-engine U.S. Marine transport plane crashed into the Pacific Ocean Thursday with 29 persons aboard. Ships and planes which combed the crash area 180 miles south-southeast of Okinawa found no sign of survivors.

"There are a lot of bodies in the air," said Cmdr. John P. Crosby, operations officer of Naha naval air facility, after receiving a report from the carrier Oriskany.

A navy spokesman said the widespread wreckage, oil and dismembered bodies, indicated the plane may have exploded in the air.

The Marine B-5D transport, a military version of the DC-6, was carrying 23 passengers and a crew of six from Atsugi, Japan, bound for Subic Point, Philippines. It flashed a distress signal, reported an engine failure and said it was ditching.

It was the second crash of a DC-6 in the Pacific in less than a week. Last Monday a civilian DC-6 of World Airways, flying under military contract, crashed on the island of Guam killing 78 military personnel and civilian dependents.

Work Plan -- With Aid Pursued

The Greater Victoria school board building committee will pursue the idea of seeking to be allowed to participate in the winter works program with federal and provincial aid, chairman Richard Reeve said yesterday.

The trustee said at a board meeting Monday night that it was "grossly unfair" to criticize school boards for failing to make more jobs when they were not permitted to participate in the program.

"With the winter work aid from the senior governments, we could do more ground development work," he said yesterday.

Editors Meet Here Today

Industrial publications editors representing 75 publications will attend the annual awards luncheon of the Pacific Coast Conference of Industrial Editors at 12:30 p.m. today in the Empress Hotel.

After the awards presentation the group will be taken on a sightseeing tour of Victoria before returning to Seattle and final meetings of the convention.

Editors from all parts of B.C. and 11 western states are taking part in the meeting which began Wednesday in Seattle.

Canada Plans Final Cut

Last Tie with U.K. May Soon Be Severed

OTTAWA (CP)—A new attempt to find a way of amending the constitution in Canada without reference to the British Parliament.

The goal is to find a way of amending the constitution in Canada without reference to the British Parliament.

An announcement Thursday from Justice Minister Fullerton's office said he and attorney general of the provinces will meet them with a view to arriving at a basis for the amending of the Canadian constitution in Canada.

Convening of the conference was agreed on at last July's federal-provincial fiscal conference after Quebec's newly-elected Liberal Premier Jean Lesage made a surprise proposal that the subject be reopened.

Canada still must seek legislative action by the United Kingdom Parliament for any constitutional change in matters involving both federal and provincial jurisdictions.

Mr. Lesage, breaking with the policies of Quebec's former Union Nationale government, told the July conference this situation "is an anomaly and a vestige of colonialism that is not acceptable."

The last attempt to find a method of amending full autonomy in constitutional matters was made in 1950. At that time, the provinces agreed on a constitutional amendment opening the door to the present program of universal federal old age pensions to all over 70.

But there was no agreement on a method whereby all aspects of the constitution could be amended in Canada.

This was despite a plea by then Prime Minister St. Laurent, who said in 1950:

"Canada is today the only nation in the Commonwealth lacking full capacity to amend its own constitution by its own action, and our country is indeed the only sovereign state in the world which lacks this power."

The previous year, the federal Parliament was empowered to amend the constitution in matters solely under federal jurisdiction. The provinces have had this right in their own fields of jurisdiction since Confederation.

Former Lesage's proposal for new constitutional talks found wide approval among Prime Minister Diefenbaker and the other premiers.

The Quebec leader coupled his suggestion with a proposal that a guarantee of fundamental human rights be embedded in the constitution.

Think of Christmas

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

I feel I might be tempting fate to even think about winter, much less write about it, while we are still enjoying the warm days of summer, now hastening to a close. Yet, if we are to have bulb flowers actually in bloom in time for Christmas and the New Year, it is time to get cracking.

The first bulbs to plant and the first to come into bloom often in time for Christmas are the so-called Roman hyacinths, actually imported from France. These are nothing like the fat Dutch hyacinths, producing a number of stems with widely spaced, loosely hung white bells. They have the true hyacinth fragrance, though, and are much easier to grow. Prices run around 35 cents a bulb.

The Cynthea hyacinths are similar in form, although not quite so early to bloom, and are available in quite a wide range of colors—there is an unnamed salmon-orange variety which is especially effective grown in bulb bowls and is priced at 20 cents a bulb. A fairly new kind of miniature hyacinth called Rosalie can be brought into bloom as early as December 15, with dainty pink flowers, while a miniature multi-flora hyacinth called Borah blooms in January, producing several spikes of lavender-blue flowers. Rosalie can be bought for 25 cents, while Borah will set you back 45 cents a bulb.

The Dutch hyacinths require a somewhat longer period of cold storage in their pots, so are a little later in coming into bloom.

Of these, probably the best white is L. Innocence, blooming in mid-January. 40 cents. Ostara bears a pale pink, daisy-like flower, very fragrant, while Pink Pearl is a lovely clear sparkling pink both selling for 45 cents for top size bulbs. A grand newcomer is Scarlet Perfection, in deep scarlet red at 60 cents, and an unusual shade in hyacinths is Orange Boven, sometimes called Salmonetta, in apricot salmon at 50 cents.

The earliest narcissi for indoor forcing are the sweetly scented Paper White and its golden cousin, Grand Soleil d'Or, and the traditional way of growing these is in bowls filled with clean washed pebbles and water. Both of these can be had in bloom in time for Christmas and need no period of cold storage at all. Bulbs of the Paper Whites run around 15 cents each and Grand Soleil d'Or 25 cents.

In past years, my favorite tulip for forcing in bowls was the tiny Duc Van Thol, standing only about eight inches tall and beautifully proportioned. For two years now, however, I haven't been able to find Duc Van Thol in any of my bulb catalogues, but the Mendel tulips, derived from them but with longer stems, are very good for this purpose. There are lots of varieties and colors to choose from and I can recommend from personal experience Orange Wonder and Her Grace, both worth about 15 cents each.

The little bulbs crocus, scilla, chionodoxa, muscari, snowdrops and snowflakes can all be grown in bowls, but don't take kindly to forcing nor to indoor life in general. These are best grown in coldframes or in an unheated sunporch or greenhouse until actually in bloom.

The Listening World

of John Crosby

Gridiron to Grand Opera

Just when we all thought radio networks were going out of business, along comes a fellow who is making a business—and a good one—out of bringing together radio networks. His name is Jerry Johnston and it all started over football. About four years ago, Johnston left the advertising agency he was working for to open his own office.

"I had been working on a football show at the agency and continued on my own," he explained. "What I did was find a number of radio stations interested in certain football games, and I strung them together into a sort of network. We started with football—now we've got grand opera."

"What always bothered me when you went to a network to buy time, was that you got stuck with stations in cities you didn't want and you didn't always get into cities you did want. If you wanted Louisville and the network didn't have a station there, you didn't get in. So we put together our own network. We buy time on 100 stations of our choice, not the network's choice. We plan on covering 98 per cent of the United States."

Johnston points out that the kind of program he puts on his made-to-order network must have substance. "It's got to be something no other station in the area can offer. Otherwise, why would people listen? It's got to be good—opera, sports, symphony—the sort of thing people have strong feelings for. This has a lot of advantages because the stations then won't be (delay broadcast) it because of an azalea festival. Also, they promote the show because they want it in the first place."

"If you must know, the same thing applies to television. But in television it gets into a billion dollar business. We'll get into television, too, one day, but we have to walk before we run."

Already Johnston is beginning to explore other avenues besides opera and sports.

"Soap operas are going off the air and there's a whole built-in audience waiting for them," he says wistfully. "Fifteen stations have called me to say they are interested in daytime serials and what can I do for them. I'd be interested in doing something in that line if it were any good. I'm interested in that program where they dramatize best sellers."

"But music is the thing most other sponsors are interested in. They'd be interested in good radio drama, too. I bet. We could have a rotating program with the various leading symphonies, throughout the country. Then we could make up our own orchestra and broadcast from Carnegie Hall. Music is the common denominator. Never mind about ratings."

Just when everyone was saying that radio networks were finished, too.

Even Errol Would Flinch

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—The late Errol Flynn was a high-living man, but I don't believe he would appreciate the interview between his teenage daughter Deirdre and producer Stanley Kubrick. Object—objection—the title role in the movie version of the book shocker, "Lolita."

Nothing set. Kubrick is also discussing the part with little Laura Chapin of Father Knows Best.

Janet Leigh, incidentally, said no to a role in "Lolita"—and I'm trying to figure which one. Couldn't have been the 12-year-old nymph.

Effrem Zimbalist, between takes on 77 Sunset Strip, confided "Stephanie (his estranged wife) and I are at a standstill. We'll wait and see what happens after we have lived apart for a few months." Their children are hoping it will be a reconciliation.

Rosemary Clooney was very ill after a recent miscarriage and her doctor would rather have her wait before the stork calls for the sixth time.

The man Josh Logan wants to portray Moss Hart in the stage version of "Act One" is Jack Lemmon. And if Jack is unavailable he'd like Horst Buchholz. George Axelrod is writing the play version, while Logan cuts his "Fanny" film in New York.

Talking of "Fanny," one of the stars, Maurice Chevalier, follows it with another picture, "Apple Pie Red." "My life of late now," says the 72-year-old Chevalier, "is to live in my home near Paris, and make films in France for American companies." Costar Leslie Caron says: "I never want to make another picture in Hollywood—I don't like the phony life." She does like "The Streetwalker," which she wants to make as her next movie—in Paris.

It will be a Laurence Olivier festival in New York next month with four big nights for Larry, one of the opening of actress Joan Plowright's play, "A Taste of Honey," the premiere of two of his movies—"The Entertainer" and "Spartacus," and the opening of his own play, "Blasted." And he's very nervous about all four. I'm told he doesn't have to worry about two of them, and one of the two is "Spartacus."

It was impossible for Tony Curtis to go to Europe as planned. Just no time. When he finishes his Universal-International film, "The Sixth Man," Tony will snatch a brief vacation before starting "The Lady L." at Metro with Gina Lollobrigida, who is now co-starring with Rock Hudson in Rome in "Come September."

It's interesting that Gina goes from Rock to Tony, two big stars who started at Universal at the same time 10 years ago. I remember seeing them, eager and insecure in the studio restaurant, day after day, hoping for the break that would come—and how it came!

Guy Madison's wife Sheila is living happily in a villa in Rome with their three children, while he toils in "Slave of Rome" in Yugoslavia. This picture was arranged for Guy by Helen Ainsworth, his mentor and best friend for the past 13 years. Helen has worked on getting Guy a film in Europe for the past five years. He is not so well-known there.

Is Time Running Out?

By KEN MacTAGGART

UNITED NATIONS (TNS)

How soon will the United States military bases in other countries be ordered to quit their locations?

Four years ago, during the debates in the UN General Assembly here, that was a frequently asked question but always with the hoped-for assumption among Western powers that it might never arise.

Growing Afro-Asian Bloc Swinging UN Majority

With the entry of 14 new small states into the United Nations, the possibility became acute and probable.

Four years ago the Assembly was debating the Suez crisis, complicated at the time by the Soviet invasion of Hungary.

To belated the issue of Hungary, and add fuel to the flames caused by the Suez venture, the Communist countries assailed American installations in Africa, Iceland,

Formosa and elsewhere as evidence of aggressive intentions.

At the time, with a preponderance of voting power at the UN the West over-rode Communist complaints.

CORRIDOR GOSSIP

But corridor gossip often swung to the possibility that some day the issue of U.S.

bases could become critical to the West.

Here's what was said at that time:

Eisenhower, turning his back upon Britain and France, was supporting the nations which were demanding Britain and France cease their assault on Egypt.

His policy, reflected in U.S.

attitude at the UN, was that the principles expounded at the UN must be accepted by its members.

Then, it was asked, what happens if some day the UN endorses a resolution which,

in effect, states that the military forces of any member nation must be restricted to the territory of that member?

U.S. policy has been very frankly a program of "containment" of Soviet expansion by force.

AIR BASE

To this end, agreements were reached with many countries for use of air bases, in installation of equipment and materials, storage of armaments.

What could happen was shown when 26 Afro-Asian states rammed through the Assembly three resolutions that stopped the Suez invasion in its tracks, ordered withdrawal of invasion forces and implemented the emergency police plan advanced by Canada's delegation.

FORCE-HATERS

Joined by the solid Communist bloc, and supported by many non-Communist but force-hating countries, principally of South America, they showed what small countries could do.

Since then the 26 have become 40.

Chairman Khrushchev undoubtedly is staging a drive to win the small states. How it can be done is seen in the case of Guinea.

When that country voted its self into independence in 1958, it declined offers of aid from Moscow until it found itself deserted by the West. Then it accepted the aid. Now, it's supporting the Soviet policy in the Congo.

De Gaulle Opponent Barred from Algeria

PARIS (Reuters) — Gen. Raoul Salan, former commander-in-chief in Algeria who has expressed opposition to President de Gaulle's Algerian policy, Thursday night was barred from returning to the North African territory, usually reliable sources said.

The 61-year-old general, summoned to Paris from Algiers, called on armed forces min-opposing de Gaulle's policy of an "Algerian Algeria."

"Cries of Algeria is French"

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

South end of James Island is one of the promising bucktail areas in south Vancouver Island waters these days, but fishing everywhere could only be described as spotty. Small boat launching facilities are available at Island View Beach, opposite the fishing grounds.

Saanich Inlet fishing has been only fair for early morning bucktail and some fish are being taken all through the day, both at the Goldstream end and around McKenzie Bay and Willis Point areas.

Closure of salmon net fishing in the Strait of Juan de Fuca has improved Victoria waterfront fishing slightly, and it is starting to look like there will be no coho run this year, although in past years the best coho fishing has been during world series time in October.

Comox Bay has been closed to all fishing and Nahmint and Cowichan Bay are still partially closed.

Pitt Clayton says a fresh run of tyee appeared in Alberni Inlet at the top end during this week and the few fishermen who braved the early morning fogs were mostly successful in landing a tyee or two.

On the east coast, coho, small spring and grilse fishing is still fairly good in Northwest Bay waters and a few of the big northern coho have been caught.

Mike Gorick says it is still pretty good at Qualicum on the bucktail and some parties are boating four or five coho, mainly around seven or eight pounds, but some up to 14 pounds. Grilse in that area have reached 14 to 15 inches.

Eve Lumb says the big springs at Qualicum Bay have apparently gone up the river, but there is still the odd coho and jack spring around. October is usually the big northern coho month at Qualicum Bay.

The northern coho are now at Shelter Point where anglers have been having good success, according to Earl Brooks. At Campbell River the tyee are few and far between, but coho are being caught in good numbers off the Spit Camp and along that coast.

On the freshwater scene, activity has been slow because of the activity in hunting. Dougan's Lake has been giving up some nice one-pound trout to fly fishermen, with black gnat being a good producer. Cowichan, Bear, Quamichan are all recommended for trout fishing.

Cowichan River and Koksilah River have not been good and are not expected to improve until there is an increase in the water level.

Quennell Lake has been good for bass on spin lures and fly and the Nanaimo Lakes, Westwood Lake, Brannan Lake and Blackjack Lake in the Nanaimo district have been fair on troll and fly.

Comox and Wolfe Lakes have been good on troll and bait and Horne Lake has been fair on gang troll.

Big Qualicum River has provided good fishing with bait and wet fly. Oyster River is still too low for good fishing.

The Stamp and Ash Rivers have been good on spin lures and fly and Somass, Sproat and China Creek are reported as fair. Little Qualicum River has been poor, but Cameron, Sproat and Great Central Lakes are producing fair numbers of large fish on troll and spin lures.

Coho and jack springs are being taken in the Somass, Sproat and Stamp Rivers.

Lower Campbell Lake is providing good fishing on worm and troll and Upper Campbell, Fry, Brewster and Buttle Lakes are only fair. Except for Lower Campbell Lake, freshwater fishing in the Campbell River district is at a low for this summer.

A heartening and unprecedented report comes from American Creek, near Hope, where a logging operator has volunteered to leave a 100-foot swath of timber standing on either side of the headwater portions of the stream to provide a suitable habitat for fish. If the upper portions of the stream are found suitable, fish and game officials will undertake a small fish planting.

This is the kind of action that is required on most of our rivers, if fishing is to be protected.

New-Look NFL Opens Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — The new-look National Football League, confronted with competition at the turnstiles for the first time in a decade, inaugurates its 41st season tonight as St. Louis Cardinals invade Los Angeles for the official opener with the Rams.

Hopeful of cracking its attendance record for the ninth consecutive year despite the emergence of the competing American League, the NFL has expanded to 13 teams with the addition of the Dallas Cowboys, and shifted the Cardinals' franchise from Chicago in an attempt to strengthen the circuit.

Cowboys, coached by former New York assistant Tom Landry, will raise the curtain on their NFL-stocked club Saturday night in the Cotton Bowl against the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The NFL pushes its main cast of stars on stage Sunday with a four-game program. Washington Redskins meet the defending champion Colts in Baltimore, eastern division rival New York is at San Francisco, Cleveland tackles the Eagles at Philadelphia and Green Bay plays host to the Bears.

Under the 13-club arrangement—Minneapolis-St. Paul is scheduled to balance the league in 1961—one team will be idle each week. Detroit sits out the first one.

The well-established and financially successful NFL will be in direct competition with the fledgling American League in four cities—Dallas, Los Angeles, New York and San Francisco, where the Oak-

Golf 'Olympics' Honor Grand Slam

NEW YORK (UPI) — The modern and the traditional will be merged ceremoniously next week at the Merion, Pa. Golf Club in the largest international amateur golf tournament ever staged.

Commemorating the 30th anniversary of Bobby Jones' grand slam—the only grand slam in the game's history—a total of 128 players representing 32 countries will tee off Wednesday in the world amateur team championship for the Eisenhower trophy.

But, before the "Olympics of Golf" get underway, there'll be ceremonies that include a flag-raising at Merion this Saturday and a dinner Monday night at the neighboring Philadelphia Country Club, where grand-slammer Jones will be the principal speaker—from his invalid's wheelchair.

It was on Sept. 27, 1930, that Bobby—most famous of all linksmen—completed his historic grand slam by winning the United States Amateur Championship over this same Merion course, after having in his various countries in different stroke-play basis. The best day and totalled at the end of three series of each team's the four-day 12-rounds, to determine the team winner.

Relatively few of the countries represented at Merion this year were playing golf on a competitive basis in 1930.

Moreover, that was only three years after Charles Lindbergh had made his memorable trans-Atlantic flight. There was no trans-oceanic jet transportation to stimulate international competition in those days.

Representation by 32 countries for an amateur golf tourney not only reflects the world-wide spread of the sport, which Jones' achievements helped mightily to popularize, but it also emphasizes the contribution of modernistic transportation to the campaign for "international good will through golf."

The world amateur team championship is a biennial tourney that was inaugurated two years ago at St. Andrews in Scotland, where Australia won the team title after a play-off with the United States.

At that inaugural, 27 countries were represented—five less than this time.

Each country sends a four-man team to the tourney. Its members are picked by the golf-governing organizations

Stray Shot Kills Little Girl

NEW YORK (AP)—A nine-year-old girl was killed today when a stray bullet struck her in the back while she was in a fight between supporters of anti-Castro men who came in porters and opponents of the Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro, died yesterday at St. Clare's Hospital.

The girl, Magdalena Urdaneta, of Caracas, Venezuela, was dining with her tourist parents in a restaurant Wednesday, when a gang of Castro sympathizers burst in. An anti-Castro, Louis Rodriguez, 25, and minutes later about a dozen adherents of Castro appeared. Beer bottles flew, fists peaked. When police arrived, the restaurant was practically empty. Lying on the floor were the girl wounded in the back and Louis Rodriguez, 25, an anti-Castro shot in the shoulder.

What Talks Are All Over?

Attorney-General Robert Bonner was frankly puzzled yesterday at a Canadian Press news service dispatch which quoted Justice Minister Fulton as saying B.C.-Ottawa talks on the drug problem has been concluded.

"What talks?" was his first reaction to questions from a Colonist reporter.

QUICK CHECK

After a quick check of senior officials in his department he said he knew of no such talks and added that the only dealings between B.C. and Ottawa on the narcotics problem had been by letter.

Mr. Fulton was reported to have said in Vancouver on Wednesday that talks with B.C. were finished and that his department would hold similar talks with other provinces.

The Fulton dispatch went on to describe the talks as having covered the question of co-operation between the two levels of government in an anti-narcotics program announced by the justice minister earlier this year.

LITTLE CONFIDENCE

But Mr. Bonner yesterday indicated he has little confidence in Mr. Fulton's plan.

He said it involved incarceration of addicts on the basis of mental incompetence, and added, "I personally have great reservations about any solution which requires locking people up."

But he said he would withhold final judgment and further comment "until the national plan is fully disclosed."

Asked if he saw merit in the English plan whereby narcotics are made available to addicts who register, he said that in all of England there are only about 500 registered addicts and that the narcotics problem is pretty much ignored.

"Any time we want to ignore our addict population we won't have a problem either," he stated.

He said the plan "suits England, but I don't know that it could be successfully transplanted."

Not Taxes, Says Bonner

Low-Geared Trade Industry's Problem

The Canadian manufacturer is going to "remain behind the economic eight-ball so long as he gears himself to an 18,000,000 population 3,000 miles long and 50 miles wide," Trade Minister Robert Bonner said yesterday.

"If Canadian manufacturers, aided by an enlightened national policy, fail to make broader associations with the trade blocs springing up all around us they must be content to accept a secondary role with unalterably high unit costs of production," he said.

"In other words, volume beats costs."

His comments came during an interview in partial reply to a speech made here Wednesday by B.C. Chamber of Commerce president Maurice P. Finnerty.

Mr. Finnerty said that in British Columbia "we have reached the stage where one third of all the dollars produced are paid to some form of government, either at the provincial or federal level."

He said any further increase

BONN, West Germany (Reuters)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer Thursday warned of East German "preparations for attack" directed against West Germany, a spokesman of his Christian Democrat party said.

The chancellor said questions would remain critical for the next 12 months.

Coincidence Too Much For Skipper

HALIFAX (C.P.)—Capt. John (Pegleg) MacKenzie was on the bridge of the Panamanian freighter Pink Star when it was sunk by a German torpedo off Iceland 19 years ago Thursday.

The 74-year-old skipper was again in command when a 60-foot fishing dragger with the same name burst into flames off here Thursday.

The coincidence was enough to make him decide to retire from a sea career that started aboard sailing vessels when he was a teenager.

"This was my last boat. I'm not going to get another," said Capt. MacKenzie at his home at nearby Tufts Cove after he and his two crew members were rescued.

The fire, which spread quickly from a generator in the engine room, burning the Pink Star to the water. It was considered a total loss. Two crew members were unhurt.

Baby Stuffed in Sewer by Boy, Pried Out Before Drowning

HAMILTON (C.P.)—A of the house she found the mother's screams and ran five-week-old boy suffered a muffled cries coming from to get a pry bar to raise the sewer cover.

Transport driver Wilbur S. "I couldn't see any baby when I looked down there when I looked. All I could see were clothes floating under the surface of the water. I grabbed and up came the baby."

Mrs. Natty Buchko, a neighbor, said the boy was not crying when brought out.

"When I shook him water flowed out, and then he started crying," she said. Police said they were unable to determine which child took the baby from the carriage and dropped it three feet into the muddy water. They said no police action was planned because all the neighborhood boys were less than seven years old, too young to be charged.

Congolese Demand More Pay

Shots Halt March on Mobutu

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI)—Some 100 unarmed Congolese soldiers marched on strong man Col. Joseph Mobutu yesterday but turned back and fled when his guards fired over their heads.

Shortly before 800 troops began the march but a colonel talked most of them out of more money.

the demonstration. However, the colonel and other officers were detained by the diehards who continued the march.

They scattered on the run when the shots were fired, and some turned back and shouted at the guards that they would be back when they armed themselves. Some reports said Mobutu had offered them more money.

Congo Unprepared

Chaos Traced To Belgium

Today's trouble in the Congo stems from a system of colonial administration that reflects historical conditions in Belgium, A. W. Mortiffee of Vancouver said yesterday in a talk to the Rotary Club.

The systems in the colonies and former colonies of the other powers in Africa also reflect conditions through the years in the mother countries, he said, but with more fortunate results.

Mr. Mortiffee, a former representative of Zululand in the South African parliament, gave this comparison:

The Portuguese system, he said, is virtually a dictatorship, with no color bar but almost no rights politically for the people, and in the Portuguese colonies "this situation has been extremely satisfactory."

The French system reflects France's revolutionary history, with no color, economic or political barriers. The tendency has been to treat and train colonial leaders as Frenchmen, and a nucleus is ready to carry on when colonies obtain their liberty.

Crew Escapes Flaming Boat

HALIFAX (CP)—The three crew members of the fishing boat Pink Star yesterday escaped their flaming craft in a dory.

They have been sighted and will be picked up by the transport department ship Brant.

A navy spokesman said the Pink Star, out of Halifax, was a mass of flames and could not be saved. A navy helicopter is circling the area.

GREAT CATHEDRAL

The 11th-century cathedral of Chartres in France has one tower reaching 350 feet, and another, finished in the 16th century, reaching 377 feet.

RETAIN FRIENDSHIP

The British system has been to prepare colonies gradually for independence in which friendship will be retained.

But the home situation in Belgium, he said, has been one of anxiety and uncertainty and a "difficult history," and the Congo was handed out to concession companies, some with a fine outlook and some out to get every cent and put nothing back.

In later years, Mr. Mortiffee said, Belgium had tried to "civilize the Congolese without making Belgians out of them," but the result has been that the Congo lacks leaders, and, he said, have gone back to tribalism.

Cafe Raided For Juror

SEATTLE (AP)—When Superior Judge William J. Wilkins found himself short a juror Thursday he ordered Sheriff Tim McCullough to go out and get one.

The sheriff went to the coffee shop of the county city building and arrested Harry W. Thomas. Thomas was startled, but went quietly.

Raiding outside the court for a juror in case of emergency is permissible under an ancient state law, the judge said.

Man Chained to Wife As Birth Spectator

ARCATA, Calif. — Mrs. John Quinn gave birth to her first child while chained to her husband.

Quinn, 23, a student at Humboldt State College, had insisted on being with his 19-year-old wife in the delivery room.

When doctors said no, Quinn shackled himself to his bride by their wrists and secured the chain with two padlocks.

Trinity Hospital officials called police, but the boy—the Quinn's first child—was born with Quinn observing.

Mother and son were reported doing fine. Father unlocked himself and happily walked out of the hospital.

Until New Appointments Made

Wicks, Steacy to Keep Portfolios

Premier Bennett said yesterday that two cabinet ministers defeated at the polls Sept. 12 will retain their portfolios until new appointments are made.

He would not say when such appointments might be made, but it is apparent he has been awaiting counting of absentee ballots in Nanaimo on Monday, when the fate of a third cabinet minister will be known.

If Recreation and Conservation Minister Earle C. West-

wood, who has a 112-vote lead over CCF candidate Colin Cameron, is defeated, the premier will be faced with a major cabinet reconstruction job.

If he wins, there might be no new appointments at all.

There has been extensive speculation that for a time, at least, Mr. Bennett might just reshuffle the portfolios held by the two defeated ministers, labor and commercial transport's Lyle Wicks and agriculture's Newton P. Steacy.

Lieutenant-Governor's Term Soon Over

Rosses Won Own Niche In B.C. People's Hearts

By JAMES K. NESBITT

A memorable, history-making regime at Government House soon ends, when Lieutenant-Governor Frank Mackenzie Ross and Mrs. Ross return to private life.

For five years this generous, warm-hearted, energetic couple have lived in the fierce, oft-times harsh glare of publicity, have shaken probably 100,000 hands, dispensed lavish, but somehow simple, family hospitality, laid cornerstones, opened bazaars, taken salutes, played host to royalty and attended royal affairs in Buckingham Palace.

No pair ever travelled more by plane. Indeed, in the last five years, they've been almost everywhere in the province. More than five times they've flown across the Atlantic and back. They think nothing of a jet flip to Montreal and back. Once they were there, and flew home for an orphan's party at Government House, then flew right back to Montreal.

They'll never forget that chilly April dawn in 1957 when they were awakened by crackling flames in Government House. They and their staff barely escaped with their lives, in the same manner as Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. T. R. McInnes in 1899.

FLED TO EMPRESS
Mr. and Mrs. Ross fled to the Empress Hotel, that night fulfilled engagements in Vancouver as if nothing had happened, though they must have been badly shaken. Any lesser couple wouldn't have been there at all.

For two years they lived in a $20,000-a-year Empress suite, the rent paid out of His Honor's personal purse, and, in some miraculous manner, they maintained the entire Government House staff, shuttling them back and forth between the Empress, their Vancouver home, and the ranch house which they then owned at Douglas Lake.

$500,000 A YEAR
Those in the know say Mr. Ross spent nearly $500,000 a year out of his own pocket during his five-year term. His federal government salary was $9,000, there were $12,000 for expenses, but that didn't pay the staff. A big garden party, for instance, costs close to $3,000; a state dinner and ball about the same.

The provincial government maintains Government House, pays the office staff, housekeeper and gardeners, who are civil servants.

BIG AFFAIRS
But the lieutenant-governor must pay chauffeur, butler, social secretary, personal maid, valet, chef and assistant cooks, assorted house and table maids and ushers, and the hordes of extra help who must be hired for big affairs.

Government House food bills must be colossal, when you consider green turtle soup, sirloin tips and cumparts. There are only two breaks a year for the governor gets no money for his limousine, liquor at cost.

HARD WORK
His Honor and Mrs. Ross leave a magnificent Government House, largely their own creation, a monument to their hard work, generosity, good taste. His Honor gathered together a splendid collection of B.C. paintings, turning Government House into an art gallery of British Columbia.

Some of the paintings he begged. He learned that, hidden in a basement of the CNR building in Montreal, were large oils done years ago by noted Horne Russell. He persuaded CNR president Donald Gordon until he presented them to Government House.

BRIC-A-BRAC
Much of the expensive furnishing and priceless bric-a-brac, including genuine antiques, were personally pur-

Spent Freely Of Money, Energy

and sometimes those just looking for a free meal or looking to get a drink or two on the house.

Five times His Honor opened the legislature, five times he prorogued it, a dignified figure, in an outlandish uniform, conscious of his high office, reading well his well-rehearsed Speech from the Throne.

On more than one occasion Mr. and Mrs. Ross banded up their household staff, and off everyone went to some distant place, like Nelson or Prince Rupert, and there His Honor and Mrs. Ross gave a reception for the townsfolk. Mr. Ross said everyone couldn't come to Government House here, but, in a measure, he could take Government House to them. As a result the province became knitted more closely together.

EARLY RISER
No breakfast-in-bed woman, but a 6 a.m. riser, Mrs. Ross had accomplished much each day by 9 a.m. Nothing went on at Government House that she didn't know about.

She was a gracious chateau, a fashionable dresser of good taste, but she was also a hard-headed diplomat, business manager of a vast, complicated, costly and sometimes temperamental official household.

WAR INJURY
Mr. Ross, for a man of his build, and considering a 1914-18 war leg injury which was painful at times, has shown amazing vitality, has done a job that would have exhausted many men half his years. The short speeches he made at many gatherings delighted his hearers, for they knew his sincerity.

It was always touching to hear him recall the day 50 years ago when, as he said himself, he landed in Canada, a poor, young immigrant from Scotland, Canada, he said, had been more than good to him, and anything he could do in return he'd do gladly and willingly, because it was a privilege. And, he usually said, if he had been able to accomplish anything at all, it was only because of the kindness and co-operation of many.

MANY HONORS
Few men in Canada have as many honors as Frank Mackenzie Ross. He holds an honorary doctor of law degree from the University of British Columbia; he's a freeman of the cities of Saint John, Victoria, Nelson, Dawson Creek. He's perhaps proudest of all of his Silver Wolf award from the Boy Scouts.

In 1959 he was elected Newsman's Club "Man of the Year," and this year Victoria Post of B.C. Native Sons gave him their Good Citizen's Award as "Man of the Year."

Now nearing 70 (next April), Frank Mackenzie Ross and his wife go back to private life, but they'll not be sitting idly around drinking cocktails and gathering cobwebs. Mr. Ross has wide business interests; Mrs. Ross will manage three households — the Vancouver home, a new ranch home at Cloverdale, a summer home at St. Andrew's-by-the-Sea, N.B.

She has two grandchildren, a handsome bachelor — lawyer son, on whom she keeps a motherly eye. She's a UBC governor and has a host of other activities. They leave Government House, assured of their own special niche in an historic institution, which they have strengthened and made more popular than ever it was before. It was a strenuous life they led, but they had fun, they met many people, they gave pleasure to thousands and they are grateful for the rich experience, as British Columbia is grateful to them for a job very well done indeed.

Tender Morsel for Wasp Attack

Recovering nicely at St. Joseph's Hospital after suffering about 30 wasp stings, five-year-old Marguerite Drever, 728 Roderick, points to small swelling on back of left hand. "This one hurt most," she told photographer. (Colonist photo.)

Little Girl Scalded

A five-year-old Saanich girl was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital yesterday morning for scalds to both thighs, then allowed to go home.

Saanich police, who took Wendy Moon, 3221 Spring Ridge Crescent, to hospital, said she suffered scalds to both legs above the knees when boiling lemonade was spilled in a mishap at her home.

Motorcyclist Recovering

A 17-year-old motorcyclist who crashed into a rock pile beside Happy Valley Road at 8:45 a.m. yesterday is in satisfactory condition at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Wayne Allen of Rocky Point received shoulder and facial injuries in the accident. Police said his motorcycle left the road and struck a rock pile. Allen was brought to hospital by Langford ambulance.

Hand-Guns Cash Stolen

Four hand-guns and $10 in cash were stolen by thieves who broke into Carmichael's Bicycle Shop, 829 Fort, overnight Wednesday, city police reported yesterday.

Besides the $10 taken from the till, the thieves stole a .22 Colt automatic worth $99; a .22 Colt Woodsman automatic valued at $54.95; an S and W .22 automatic worth $79 and a Marksman air pistol worth $10.

Arbitration Boards

Victoria Leaders Win Their Fight

Greater Victoria municipal leaders yesterday won an on-and-off-stage battle with labor union representatives at New Westminster and, Mayor Percy Scourrah said last night, "I feel we did pretty well."

The Union of B.C. Municipalities, in convention in the Royal City, endorsed a Victoria resolution calling for arbitration boards consisting of or headed by judges to settle disputes between municipalities and policemen's and firemen's unions.

BINDING AWARDS
At present conciliation boards make binding awards in such disputes. The Victoria resolution said a conciliation board "is not a suitable tribunal... being designed only for the purpose of endeavoring to bring about by compromise voluntary agreement between the parties to a labor dispute."

"The policemen and firemen were here in full force lobbying everyone," Mayor Scourrah told the Colonist last night. "We had real opposition too of the floor from labor men in municipal office. But we got it through with a 21 majority."

The resolution, which arose

If the UBCM is now successful in representations to the provincial government, the Municipal Act will be amended to provide for appointment of an arbitration board of the type suggested.

Arm Lost

Charles Montgomery, 31, of 3177 Millgrove, lost his right arm in an accident yesterday at Wagner, Stein & Green Ltd., Ogden Point.

City police, who rushed the injured man to St. Joseph's Hospital, were told he had been oiling a crane when his arm was caught and mangled in the gears.

LIEUT. GOV. ROSS

... warm-hearted

garet was here for a centennial year visit, and His Honor trotted all over the province with her, guiding and guarding her, until Her Royal Highness came to look upon him as a kind, spry big brother. And, of course, there was a special welcome for him and Mrs. Ross when they attended her wedding in London a few months back.

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh opened the new Government House last year, and His Honor toasted Her Majesty at a supper dance in the gleaming ballroom and squirmed her through milling crowds at a garden party. A few weeks later Princess Alexandra of Kent showed up and His Honor took that royal young lady fishing.

MANY LANDS
The parade that passed before Mr. Ross and his wife included, besides those of royal blood, ambassadors from many lands, admirals and generals, gartered bishops and purple-gowned archbishops, the blind, the orphans, a college class on history, boy scouts, nurses, black-robed nuns, titled lords and ladies from abroad, the governor-general of Alaska, the premier and cabinet ministers, members of the legislature, the rich and the poor, the fashionable and the dowdy, railway and bank presidents, members of parliament, senators, the socially ambitious

Three Unfortunate Policies

Widen Winter Work Plan Bennett Urges Ottawa

Premier Bennett yesterday urged the federal government to widen its winter work program.

He asked specifically that hospital and school construction be included in the plan through which Ottawa pays 50 per cent of labor costs on approved projects and the province 25 per cent.

The premier kicked off his plea for stimulating employment with the announcement that he has recommended an immediate start on construction of a third $3,000,000 provincial ferry (see also story on Page 1).

He blamed unemployment on "three unfortunate policies" which have been followed by the last two federal governments: "tight money, high interest rates and an overpriced Canadian dollar."

The first two hampered the rate of industrial expansion and the last hit Canadian exports in British Columbia, he said.

"The British Columbia government was the first in Canada to point out the disastrous consequences which were certain to result from these policies," he added.

To help counteract the consequences, he continued, the province "has (during the past year) let more highway and bridge contracts than ever before in British Columbia's history."

School boards have been encouraged to build "all necessary school facilities" and hospitals have been encouraged to build and extend facilities wherever necessary.

CAPITAL COSTS
Necessary capital was made available to the school districts and the province paid half the capital costs on hospital projects, he went on.

"I am convinced that despite the urgent need for realistic policies at the national level, the overall employment picture in British Columbia is sound," he stated.

He said business has shown confidence in the future of the province through major construction and expansion projects now under way or on the point of getting under way.

But he asked for "the sincere and vigorous co-operation of management, labor and private citizens in an immediate attack on the unemployment problem."

He said the province is preparing its brief to the federal-provincial conference to be held at Ottawa Oct. 26, 27 and 28 and at that time he will submit further plans for a co-ordinated effort to create additional work.

Asked if he would call a fall session of the legislature in connection with the unemployment problem, he said "We wouldn't hesitate to call one if it would serve any useful purpose."

Fallout Shelters

People of City Not Convinced

Federal and provincial civil defence authorities apparently have failed to convince the people of Greater Victoria that they need fallout shelters in their homes.

Government-approved plans for basement fallout shelters have been available for more than two months, and in mid-

July Provincial Secretary Wesley Black urged all British Columbians to build them for protection from radioactive fallout in case of nuclear war.

Earlier this month a provincial civil defence official said about 1,000 persons in Greater Victoria had asked for plans. But a check with building inspectors yesterday disclosed that no one has applied for a building permit for a shelter.

"Definitely not," said the city department.

"No, they have not. No one's after them," said Oak Bay.

"No, not as yet," said Esquimalt, and "None whatsoever," said Saanich.

To Elect Officers

Victoria Chamber of Commerce harbor and transportation group will elect new officers and discuss its program for the coming year at a meeting at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday in the chamber board room, 816 Wharf Street.

B.C. Hydro Potential Luring Big Industries

Major industries are anxious to move to B.C. because of its vast hydro power potential, Premier Bennett declared yesterday.

He said he has already received several inquiries from such industries as a result of a growing power shortage in the Pacific Northwest.

The premier would not tell newsmen what type of industries are involved.

But he expressed confidence that two huge power developments on the Columbia and Peace Rivers will proceed as planned.

Cars Fly Through Air

Two cars parked in the 2800 block Shelbourne were knocked through the air and damaged when they were struck by another car at 8:58 p.m. yesterday.

Driver who caused the accident left the scene but police later found a suspect.

A car owned by Claude Hunt, 2833 Shelbourne, was knocked into the rear of one owned by Les Kelly, 2837 Shelbourne. Hunt's car, with about $700 damage, then went 92 feet into Kelly's yard and Kelly's car, damaged about $100, travelled 47 feet, said police.

The third car also had about $700 damage, they said.

University Women Hear About Russian Schools

The speaker for the evening at the opening meeting of the Victoria University Women's Club was Mr. Dixon Falconer, and his subject was "Education in Russia."

Mr. Falconer who is head of the History Department at Mt. View High School, and a recent recipient of a Canada Council Scholarship, has recently returned from three years study in Europe. During this time he was one of a group of forty educationalists selected by the Institute of Education in London to travel to Moscow on an inaugural flight for a two week visit to observe the Russian system of education.

Mr. Dixon began by describing briefly the organization of Russian schools and told how closely allied the Ministry of Education is with "Party policy."

THREE R'S

Kindergartens exist for the small child, age three and up, whose parents are working, and at an early age the three 'R's' are emphasised rather than encouraging any creativeness in the child.

At the secondary school level, the speaker commented on the apparent lack of any disciplinary problem, and on enquiry it was explained that the youth groups are able to cope with this aspect and usually chastisement by this group is sufficient punishment for any violation of the rules and regulations. The curriculum in these schools is very strict and the theoretical side of education is stressed.

BOARDING

In recent years the boarding schools have become very popular and the teachers, in these institutions seemed to be of a very high calibre. Excellent accommodation is afforded the student and the fees are paid according to the income of the parents. Throughout all the schools visited, extremely well stocked libraries were evident, but in some cases it seemed obvious that the selection of the volumes used for the teaching program was made to suit their own theme.

However, there was an abundance of material available. In the Moscow library the popular Canadian and American magazines and periodicals can be read by anyone.

HIGH LEVEL

In the Polytechnical Institutes there is a very high level of technical knowledge. Both the manual and intellectual branches of education are respected. There are also special schools for those showing strong potentiality in the fine arts.

At the University level it was interesting to note that at the University of Moscow the students do not pay fees but instead receive a stipend from the government while attending university.

English is offered as a foreign language along with French and German and the students are taught to 'speak' the language and are not too concerned with the 'formal study' of the language.

Supplies Received From Junior Group

Acting Dorcas secretary Mrs. E. Jarvis announced at meeting of the diocesan board of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Anglican Church, held in St. Luke's Church, that 96 girls' blouses and slips, 72 sports blouses and 112 nightgowns were being made. Mothers' bags, containing pins, needles, thread and other sewing articles, had been received from the Junior Auxiliary.

Mrs. C. Millard presided. Mrs. G. W. Lifton welcomed the 93 delegates present; Rev. T. D. B. Ragg and Rev. G. Emery conducted devotions and Miss Jane Leigh thanked St. Luke's W.A. the hostess group.

Treasurer Mrs. F. A. Goodwin reported balance of $15,176.86; receipts for the summer months of $5,584.76; disbursements, $5,256.83. Care of the elderly fund totalled $1,057.96. Mrs. Goodwin said the legacy fund $4,439.11.

Other reports were given by Mrs. H. F. Ballantyne, who said there was $411.40 in the extra cents fund; Mrs. T. Hughes, candidates' secretary, who said Miss Margaret Tredwell, St. John's, Victoria, was now attending the Anglican Women's Training College in Toronto, and that Miss Joy Ruddock had passed her scholar of theology examinations. She also announced that Oct. 15 is Youth Sunday. Meeting was told that the United Thank Offering, amounting to $4,241.82, was to be included with donations sent to the Dominion meeting from all branches in Canada.

It may also be too much excitement, too little rest, too little activity in the fresh air, or snacks outside home.

TIPS FOR PARENTS

By EDITH HENRY

Children like to eat. As they grow, they like to have something to say about their own food.

It's a sign of their independence.

If we force our own ideas upon them trouble is apt to begin, the kind of trouble that pyramids and centres about the family table.

Words and more words tend to build a stone wall of resistance and defence. Better to pick up a spoon, and help the child to finish. If he refuses, he has probably had enough.

Remarks about new foods are best used sparingly, too. Serve new foods when you feel the child is especially hungry and happy—in very small portions—with well-liked food, but not mixed.

If he refuses, make no comment, but try again in a week or so. Do not worry—if you can help it—worry carries over to the child.

Each child has his own likes and dislikes, nevertheless he will grow to be a normal eater some day, we hope.

If you have already a feeding problem—child try inviting in little friends who are good eaters.

Sometimes example will do what you can't. It is a wonderful incentive—on the part of family members, too!

When a child seems to be eating less than is customary, rather than coax or force, seek the cause. It may be an oncoming illness, teething, or a sore mouth—a low grade infection which the child is carrying without being really sick. This is sometimes found in older children. A doctor will help you out.

It may also be too much excitement, too little rest, too little activity in the fresh air, or snacks outside home.

Women's Groups

Reorganization Approved

EDMONTON (CP)—Complete reorganization of women's groups in the United Church of Canada received final approval of the 19th general council Wednesday.

The project, under study for several years, was described by officials as one of the most important since church union 35 years ago.

As of Jan. 1, 1962, women in the work of the church will be members of the United Church Women. This new organization will take over the functions of the Woman's Missionary Society and the Woman's Association.

For the first time women will be represented by a board in the church.

In the keynote speech of the meeting, attended by more than 100 representatives of the province's $100,000,000 tourist industry, the minister said European countries were spending millions of dollars to entice the American tourist. But he was confident a co-ordinated effort here could counter the competition.

PACKAGE TOURS

C. E. Blaney, a Victoria travel agent, said there was a need for re-organizing package tours to bring tourists to B.C. Later Peter Bennett, chairman of the B.C. Winter Recreation Committee, said he will recommend today that the group press for the 1968 Winter Olympics.

Mouth-to-Mouth

Silt-Pile Rescue Spurs Technique

The dramatic saving of a Langford boy's life Wednesday has spurred action to make knowledge of artificial respiration more widespread.

Plans for capsule courses in the mouth-to-mouth method of artificial respiration for any one who wants to learn are being discussed by the Greater Victoria and District Safety Council.

Harry Talbot, president of the council, said mouth-to-mouth respiration is one of the most efficient of the life-saving techniques. It was officially recognized by the B.C. Medical Association only last year. Mrs. Eugene Yates used this method Wednesday to revive Brian Pedden, 4, 2686 Selwyn, after he was buried in a silt pile.

NURSES' TRAINING

She learned the method while taking nurses' training. Mr. and Mrs. Pedden credit Mrs. Yates with saving their boy. He was in good condition at home yesterday.

Mr. Talbot said because the method is so new few people except doctors, nurses and first-aid attendants know the proper administration procedure.

"I think it would be a very good idea if a short course was given dealing with only the mouth-to-mouth method," he said.

"There is really very little to learning this type of respiration and it could probably be taught in an hour."

If only one life were saved for every 10,000 who took the course, it would be well worth it, Mr. Talbot said.

"If schools and other organizations joined in the program thousands of people could receive instruction," he said.

UBCM Goal on Money Bylaws:

Simple Majority Rules

NEW WESTMINSTER will be sent to Victoria for Ald. Halford Wilson of Vancouver Thursday night was elected president of the Municipalities voted Thursday a resolution from Burnaby suggesting that two-thirds of UBCM Mayor F. S. Short, a municipal council be allowed to incur debt for the provision of essential services was defeated.

Under the present act, municipalities must get approval of 60 per cent of those voting on money bylaws. Many municipalities in recent years have seen such bylaws passed by a simple majority but defeated because less than 60 per cent approved.

Ald. Earle Adams of Vancouver told the UBCM's annual convention there is no reason why 41 per cent of the people should defeat the pension because most volunteer firemen get $25 a month. The convention's decision or less.

Peril Lies Ahead

VANCOUVER (CP) — The real danger of nuclear war will come in 10 or 20 years with the growth of Statesmen who know nothing of the real misery of war, the world leader of the Salvation Army said Thursday.

"The terrible consequences and the futility of a nuclear war are appreciated in the minds of today's leaders," General Wilfred Kitchen of London told reporters on his arrival here for the Army's western Canadian congress this weekend.

REAL DANGER

"But in 10 or 20 years we could have a regime of world statesmen who know nothing about the suffering or agonies of war," General Kitchen said. "Then there could be a real danger of global war."

He said machinery must be set up through the United Nations to prevent this ever happening.

The Salvation Army, with its world-wide organization, is an example to politicians of how people of different races and creeds can live and work in harmony, he added.

"In the Congo, for example, our work is going on with a minimum of interference. All of our missionaries are at their posts doing their normal duties."

PNR Crew Sabotages Beavers

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Pacific Northern Railway construction crews are slowly winning a battle with beavers.

Each day workmen break down dams constructed across a channel used to drain a swamp across the right of way of the railway and each night the beavers construct a new dam.

But the beavers are losing because as the level of the water drops their feed trails are cut off.

Tranquilizer Use Abused Doctor Says

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Dr. Roger Dufresne, professor of therapeutics at the University of Montreal, says the use of tranquilizers and sedatives is definitely being abused in Canada.

Dr. Dufresne, here for the not be held fully responsible 36th annual congress of the Association of French-Speaking Doctors, said in an interview that too many people are taking them as a means of reducing anxiety.

But he said the public can bring no solution to the problems that might exist.

He said anxiety is a normal phenomenon with adults. Morbid anxiety is generally only found among adults who are either nervous or mentally ill. Most of the tranquilizers on the Canadian market at the moment are manufactured in the United States, Dr. Dufresne said.

"Seldom does a month go by in which one can't find a new tranquilizer on the market,"

100 DELEGATES.

Earlier Dr. Dufresne told some 400 delegates attending the congress that doctors should be well informed on the effects of sedatives and tranquilizers, especially since new brands are being introduced on the market with an alarming regularity.

Dr. Dufresne said there is no absolute control on the manufacture of pharmaceutical products in Canada. However, large manufacturing companies guarded against producing a product of inferior quality.

Brave Tars To Share In Salvage

LONDON (AP)—Sailors of the Royal Navy who risked their lives to board two blazing oil tankers which collided in the Arabian Sea are to share in a £400,000 ($1,092,000) salvage award made to the British Admiralty.

Nearly £100,000 is to be divided among the 3,700 officers and enlisted men who took part in the salvage operations two years ago. The rest will go to the British government.

The award, announced yesterday, was settled between the admiralty and owners of the tankers Melika (Liberian) and Fernand Gilabert (French) both abandoned when the Royal Navy arrived on the scene.

The crews of 10 navy vessels will receive awards ranging from $1,960 to $11, according to rank and the part they played.

Boatman Fined

VANCOUVER (CP)—Donald Malcolm, operator of a speedboat which travelled in an area reserved for swimmers at Kitsilano beach here, was fined $50 in police court Wednesday. A lifeguard reported the incident, Malcolm told the court he came within 35 feet of the shore because he thought he saw a swimmer in trouble.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER
... moderate tone at UN

Returns Boos

Ike's Address
'Conciliatory'
Says Nikita

NEW YORK (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev said last night that he considered President Eisenhower's address before the United Nations as "conciliatory."

Khrushchev made the statement at a reception given by the Togo Republic. "The president must have been ashamed of the U-2 incident since he did not mention it," Khrushchev said. "He only saw fit to mention the RB-47."

Khrushchev was asked what he thought was affirmative in the speech given by Eisenhower.

Clash Coming

UN Battle
On China
Shapes Up

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—The United States and Russia headed last night into their first major clash of the "heads of government" United Nations General Assembly session on the question of a seat for Red China. Despite President Eisenhower's deliberately low-keyed and propaganda-free address to the assembly yesterday morning, the start of the East-West word battle seemed inevitable in the 21-member general, or steering, committee.

Salvation Army Says:

Sex Education Over-Taught

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lack of family life, especially at night, and over-teaching of sex education are the basic reasons for an increase in the number of unwed mothers in Canada, said Mrs. Wilfred Kitching, wife of the Salvation Army's world leader.

"They are younger now, too," she said in an interview here. "Many 13, 14 and 15-year-olds are in our homes."

Mrs. W. W. Booth, wife of the Salvation Army's Canadian leader, said two-thirds of the 1,800 women in Salvation

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

President Eisenhower's United Nations speech appears to be a virtual open invitation to Soviet Premier Khrushchev to call off the cold war. (See full details on page 3.)

While Eisenhower, in his eight years as president, has suffered a lot of hard knocks as a result of Soviet policy, his farewell speech is more of an appeal for resumption of East-West talks to reduce tensions than a vehicle for abusing Russian actions.

In his disarmament proposal—that means be found immediately whereby the production of nuclear ingredients for atom bombs be halted—Eisenhower seems to be gently cutting a patch which Khrushchev can follow without loss of face.

The proposal is neither so weighty nor so full of contention that Khrushchev can't find a way to accept it without compromising Russian military security.

Both Russia and the U.S. are known to have huge stocks of nuclear bombs, perhaps sufficient to blow up the world or a good part of it. Neither may see much profit in continuing this production. The only major power that might be against an immediate production halt is France—a Western ally still in the early stages as a nuclear power.

And Khrushchev may encounter little international support should he criticize Eisenhower's proposed expansion of financial and other aid for the United Nations, especially among the newly emerging African states. The growing confidence in the UN and its Secretary-General, Dag

Hammarstrand, is illustrated by the crushing defeat Russia suffered in trying to censor Hammarstrand in his actions to bring peace to the Congo.

By speaking first, Eisenhower could have opened a lot of wounds on Khrushchev's side. But he spoke only fleetingly of the frictions in Berlin and the shooting down of the American RB-47 reconnaissance plane off Russia's north coast last July.

The President uttered not a word to repeat accusations that Khrushchev has shattered the Summit Conference in Paris last May or that the Japanese riots which prevented Eisenhower from visiting Tokyo were communist-inspired.

There was no mention of communist agitation in Latin America nor of the American contention that Russia is influencing the actions of the Fidel Castro government in Cuba.

The tone of Eisenhower's speech is conciliatory. It seems to be saying the President is prepared to cast aside his hurt pride if the Soviet boss is prepared to do the same.

John D Definitely
UN-Bound

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced late Thursday that he will go to New York Saturday to attend the UN General Assembly.

The prime minister said following a cabinet meeting that he will address the assembly Monday.

SIMILAR ANNOUNCEMENT

The announcement followed closely a similar one from London that Prime Minister Macmillan will go to New York this weekend where he is expected to address the assembly later in the week and also to confer with President Eisenhower, who called Thursday for resumption of disarmament negotiations.

THIRD LEADER

Mr. Diefenbaker was the third Commonwealth head to announce plans to attend the session. Western leaders other than Mr. Eisenhower earlier had given no sign that they would copy the heads of the Communist bloc by appearing at the UN.

Shocks B.C. Leaders

By TERRY HAMMOND

Top provincial officials are secretly shocked at the bungling manner in which the possible appointment of Defence Minister George Pearkes as lieutenant-governor has been handled by Ottawa.

"It really makes you wonder a bit," said one government source yesterday. "If they can't handle a simple little thing like this what can they handle?"

But in spite of speculation that the defence minister's appointment to the post had finally been ruled out by a humiliating disclosure that Conservatives were raising a $200,000 fund so he could afford it, the provincial government believes he is still the number one candidate.

Appointment of Mr. Pearkes to the post has been rumored for months and it was felt that Prime Minister Diefenbaker would have cleared the air weeks ago.

In the meantime, the defence minister's attitude towards the appointment was not improved when a former Diefenbaker aide, Vancouver lawyer Gowan Guest, made overtures to Con-

BRUSSELS (Reuters)—Terrified crowds rushed through the streets Thursday when at least five severe earth tremors shook the town of Usumbura, in the Belgian trust territory of Ruanda Urundi.

Several persons were injured when occupants stampeded out of public buildings as cracks zig-zagged across walls.

Third Provincial Ferry
To Be Ordered at OnceBennett Makes
Decision

In a surprise move yesterday Premier Bennett announced his decision to build a third B.C. government ferry to augment the sister ships Mv Sidney and Mv Tsawwassen.

He said business on the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen run had "been better than expected," but would not say how much profit, if any, the Vancouver Island mainland service has earned.

NO COST FIGURES

The service chalked up gross revenue of $206,781 during the first 15 days of September but no cost figures have been divulged.

He told a press conference he is recommending to the executive council an immediate start on construction of the third vessel.

His recommendation is considered tantamount to an order to get the $3,000,000 job underway.

Tenders will be called as soon as specifications for the third vessel are laid down, a relatively simple task because they will not differ materially from specifications for the two existing ferries which went into service earlier this year.

The premier's announcement evoked happy astonishment in Victoria municipal, business and shipbuilding circles.

BUSINESS GOOD

"This is excellent," said Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell. "Apparently business is good."

He said the rapid decision to expand the ferry service fleet shows that "Victoria apparently need have no fears that its transportation needs will be neglected."

Chamber of Commerce president M. Aubrey Kent said "this is wonderful news—I'm very glad to see the ferries doing so well."

He said he hopes a local yard will win the construction contract.

HOPE WE GET IT

Harold E. Husband, president of Victoria Machinery Depot Ltd., builder of the Mv Sidney, said "we are delighted we will bid on it you may be sure, and I hope we get it."

Victoria Machinery was low bidder when tenders were called for the Sidney, and the firm's price was below that bid by Burrard Drydock Ltd. of Vancouver on the sister ship Mv Tsawwassen.

John A. Wallace, general manager of Yarrows Ltd., said his firm will also bid on the new ferry. His company entered a joint bid with Burrard Drydock in Vancouver when the first two vessels were built because Yarrows did not have facilities to construct the hull at its local yard.

But he said the company's recent $400,000 expansion project will now permit construction of the entire vessel.

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—C. A. L. Murchison, Unemployment Insurance Commissioner, said Thursday abuses in connection with unemployment benefits are helping shrink the country's Unemployment Insurance Fund and are causing "concern."

"If they are to stop," he told a press conference, "decisions will have to be made by the government that will be politically damaging."

Train Escapes
Firebug's Plot

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP)—Fire burned away 100 feet of a wooden Pacific Great Eastern Railway trestle Thursday, minutes before a passenger train was to cross. Arson was blamed.

A patrolman spotted the fire on the 600-foot-long, curving trestle over a ravine about nine miles north of here. He radioed the engineer aboard a following train carrying 33 passengers and it stopped at the edge of the trestle.

"We have no alternative but to suspect arson," general manager Joe Broadbent said. The fire was out of control by the time the patrolman saw it.

It took nearly three hours for firemen to arrive and begin extinguishing it.

Mr. Broadbent said it would take three days to complete repairs. Freight would be taken meanwhile to Squamish by barge, while passengers went by bus to Horseshoe Bay.

Zig-Zagged in Sky

Another 'Object' Seen at Duncan

DUNCAN—Three persons saw an unidentified flying object "zig-zag" across the sky from here Wednesday evening.

It was the size of a large star, the same color with a flickering appearance and was on an erratic course.

Mrs. William Pipe, Menzies Road, first saw it about 8.40 p.m. and watched it from a large field near a barn. Her son, Gerald Pipe, 30, and a neighbor, Jerry Windsor, Lake Cowichan Road, watched it with her for several minutes about 9 p.m.

"It sort of bounced along, stopping at times and at others apparently changing elevation," she said yesterday.

Mr. Pipe could give no estimate to the object's height.

"All I can say is that it wasn't like the satellite, that had its own course and moved steadily across the sky from west to east," she said. "This thing moved very slowly most of the time although it did appear to speed up at times."

It was the first unidentified flying object sighting in recent months. A year ago more than 20 persons made sightings within a week.

Vernon Stanley-Jones, head of an unidentified flying object group, said it was the only sighting that he had heard of that night. None had been reported to him recently.

Mysterious Barking Dog May Be Lost in Canyon

DUNCAN—An attempt to find the "mysterious" barking dog near Summit community failed yesterday.

"If there is a dog in the canyon it is free, and just can't find its way out," said SPCA Inspector Mike Carmichael yesterday.

He and William Waldon, who knows the area well, were going into the small canyon area opposite 3-mile landpost on the Lake Cowichan Road when they found out that Art Hancock, Lake Cowichan guide, had gone into the area but could find no trace of the animal.

The inspector said numerous complaints had been made during the last three days of the dog barking at night.

"If it is heard barking (last night) we'll try again," Mr. Carmichael said.

Until New Appointments Made

Wicks, Steacy to Keep Portfolios

Premier Bennett said yesterday that two cabinet ministers defeated at the polls Sept. 12 will retain their portfolios until new appointments are made.

He would not say when such appointments might be made, but it is apparent he has been awaiting counting of absentee ballots. In Nanaimo on Monday, when the fate of a third cabinet minister will be known.

If Recreation and Conservation Minister Earle C. West-

wood, who has a 112-vote lead over CCF candidate Colin Cameron, is defeated, the premier will be faced with a major cabinet reconstruction job.

If he wins, there might be no new appointments at all.

There has been extensive speculation that for a time, at least, Mr. Bennett might just reshuffle the portfolios held by the two defeated ministers, labor and commercial transport's Lyle Wicks and agriculture's Newton P. Steacy.

Lieutenant-Governor's Term Soon Over

Rosses Won Own Niche In B.C. People's Hearts

By JAMES K. NESBITT

A memorable, history-making regime at Government House soon ends, when Lieutenant-Governor Frank Mackenzie Ross and Mrs. Ross return to private life.

For five years this generous, warm-hearted, energetic couple have lived in the fierce, oft-times harsh glare of publicity, have shaken probably 100,000 hands, dispensed lavish, but somehow simple, family hospitality, laid cornerstones, opened bazaars, taken salutes, played host to royalty and attended royal affairs in Buckingham Palace.

No pair ever travelled more by plane. Indeed, in the last five years, they've been almost everywhere in the province. More than five times they've flown across the Atlantic and back. They think nothing of a jet flip to Montreal and back. Once they were there, and flew home for an orphan's party at Government House, then flew right back to Montreal.

They'll never forget that chilly April dawn in 1957 when they were awakened by crackling flames in Government House. They and their staff barely escaped with their lives, in the same manner as Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. F. R. McInnes in 1899.

T. R. McInnes in 1899.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross fled to the Empress Hotel, that night fulfilled engagements in Vancouver—as if nothing had happened, though they must have been badly shaken. Any lesser couple wouldn't have been there at all.

For two years they lived in a $20,000-a-year Empress suite, the rent paid out of His Honor's personal purse, and, in some miraculous manner, they maintained the entire Government House staff, shuttling them back and forth between the Empress, their Vancouver home, and the ranch house which they then owned at Douglas Lake.

Those in the know say Mr. Ross spent nearly $500,000 a year out of his own pocket during his five-year term. His federal government salary was $9,000, there were $12,000 for expenses, but that total didn't pay the staff. A big garden party, for instance, costs close to $3,000; a state dinner and ball about the same.

The provincial government maintains Government House, pays the office staff, housekeeper and gardeners, who are civil servants.

BIG AFFAIRS

But the lieutenant-governor must pay chauffeur, butler, social secretary, personal maid, valet, chef and assistant cooks, assorted house and table maids and ushers, and the hordes of extra help who must be hired for big affairs.

Government House food bills must be colossal, when you consider green turtle soup, sirloin tips and cumparts. There are only two breaks: a lieutenant-governor gets no licence for his limousine, liquor at cost.

HARD WORK

His Honor and Mrs. Ross leave a magnificent Government House, largely their own creation, a monument to their hard work, generosity, good taste. His Honor gathered together a splendid collection of B.C. paintings, turning Government House into an art gallery of British Columbia.

Some of the paintings he begged. He learned that, hidden in a basement of the CNR building in Montreal, were large oils done years ago by noted Horne Russell. He persuaded CNR president Donald Gordon until he presented them to Government House.

chased by Mrs. Ross and she is leaving most of it. The public, it is estimated, as a tribute to Frank Ross and his wife presented more than $300,000 in furnishings and ornaments, everything from an ornate French piano to a paper weight.

More royal personages came to British Columbia in the Ross regime than in any other period of the province's history. The lieutenant-governor and his chateau entertained them both here and at their Vancouver home, the mansion built by Mrs. Reginald Chaplin, the youngest of the eight daughters of Vancouver Island coal, timber and railway tycoon Robert Dunsmuir of Craigdarroch Castle.

The Ross' first royal visitor was the Princess Royal. Then came Queen Mother Elizabeth, on her way to Australia. In 1958 Princess Mar-

BRICA-BRAC

Much of the expensive furnishing and priceless bric-a-brac, including genuine antiques, were personally pur-

and sometimes those just looking for a free meal or looking to get a drink or two on the house.

Five times His Honor opened the legislature, five times he prorogued it, a dignified figure, in an outlandish uniform, conscious of his high office, reading well his well-rehearsed Speech from the Throne.

On more than one occasion Mr. and Mrs. Ross banded up their household staff, and off everyone went to some distant place, like Nelson or Prince Rupert, and there His Honor and Mrs. Ross gave a reception for the townsfolk. Mr. Ross said everyone couldn't come to Government House here, but, in a measure, he could take Government House to them. As a result the province became knitted more closely together.

EARLY RISER

No breakfast-in-bed woman, but a 6 a.m. riser, Mrs. Ross had accomplished much each day by 9 a.m. Nothing went on at Government House that she didn't know about.

She was a gracious chateau, a fashionable dresser of good taste, but she was also a hard-headed diplomatic business manager of a vast, complicated, costly and sometimes temperamental official household.

WAR INJURY

Mr. Ross, for a man of his build, and considering a 1914-18 war leg injury which was painful at times, has shown amazing vitality, has done a job that would have exhausted many men half his years. The short speeches he made at many gatherings delighted his hearers, for they knew his sincerity.

It was always touching to hear him recall the day 50 years ago when, as he said himself, he landed in Canada, a poor, young immigrant from Scotland. Canada, he said, had been more than good to him, and anything he could do in return he'd do gladly and willingly, because it was a privilege. And, he usually said, if he had been able to accomplish anything at all, it was only because of the kindness and co-operation of many.

The loyal support of his good wife whom he generally calls Phyllis in front of anyone.

MANY HONORS

Few men in Canada have as many honors as Frank Mackenzie Ross. He holds an honorary doctor of laws degree from the University of British Columbia; he's a freeman of the cities of Saint John, Victoria, Nelson, Dawson Creek. He's perhaps proudest of all of his Silver Wolf award from the Boy Scouts.

In 1959 he was elected Newsman's Club "Man of the Year," and this year Victoria Post of B.C. Native Sons gave him their Good Citizen's Award as "Man of the Year."

Now nearing 70 (next April), Frank Mackenzie Ross and his wife go back to private life, but they'll not be sitting idly around drinking cocktails and gathering cowboys. Mr. Ross has wide business interests; Mrs. Ross will manage three households—the Vancouver home, a new ranch home at Cloverdale, a summer home at St. Andrew's-by-the-Sea, N.B.

She has two grandchildren, a handsome bachelor—lawyer son, on whom she keeps a motherly eye. She's a UBC governor and has a host of other activities.

They leave Government House, assured of their own special niche in an historic institution, which they have strengthened and made more popular than ever it was before. It was a strenuous life they led, but they had fun, they met many people, they gave pleasure to thousands and they are grateful for the rich experience, as British Columbia is grateful to them for a job very well done, indeed.

Accident Involving Girl Brings Two Men Into Court

NANAIMO—An accident involving a 15-year-old girl brought two men into Nanaimo police court today and the driver got off lighter than his companion.

Alan Harvey Anderson, of Port Couillard, was fined $125 for impaired driving plus another $15 for not having a valid driver's license and then lost his driving privileges until November.

The 20-year-old logger who worked at Tahsis on Vancouver Island said that his foot slipped off the brake after his car struck the girl at Nicol and Milken Streets last night and that he didn't see her until he was hurt. The youngster was taken to hospital and treated, then allowed to proceed home afterwards.

Anderson's companion, Robert Henry Puckett, of Vancouver, pleaded guilty to causing a public mischief by making false statements causing the police to make an investigation.

Puckett had told police that it wasn't Anderson who was driving the car at the time of the accident.

Magistrate Lionel Beevor Potts severely reprimanded the accused and fined him $300.

QUALICUM (CP)—A CPR public relations officer said British Columbia cannot survive the competition for the tourist dollar unless more money is spent on advertising.

E. C. MacPherson urged various sections of the province to co-operate in joint advertising programs and to feature special attractions.

not just such generalities as "come to beautiful B.C."

He said at a luncheon of the B.C. Tourist Council the chief problem is lack of money to extend an advertising program.

"Our position hasn't improved since last year when we deplored the measly amount set aside for media advertising."

DUNCAN—Five-year-old children have little fear of dentists until they learn it is a social custom to be scared, said Dr. C. J. G. Mackenzie, head of Central Vancouver Island Health Unit.

"They are quite prepared to accept what they find in a dentist's office. Some are terrified, usually reflecting the attitudes of their parents, but generally they have little fear," he said. "Later they learn after meeting others that it is a social custom to be afraid."

He made the comments last night to the board of school district 65 when he recommended the school dental plan this year include only five-year-olds instead of five and six-year-olds as last year.

The board came to no decision.

NANAIMO—The end is in sight for a centennial project in Nanaimo that was begun nearly two years ago.

Mayor Pete Maffeo has announced that the long-awaited mosaic tiles to complete the Italian Centennial Fountain have arrived in Vancouver and will be shipped here as soon as they clear customs.

The tile, which came from Mexico, will line the huge fountain that stands at the entrance to the city near the CPR dock. It was completed earlier this year by craftsmen of Italian descent, who decided to undertake the project using their talents in stone cutting and landscaping to help beautify their adopted home city.

Two salmon, carved out of 8-foot chunks of rock, were erected on posts above the fountain earlier this summer to complete the stone work and the mayor says that it will take only a few days to line the fountain with the colorful tile once it arrives here.

DUNCAN—A motorist was fined $25 for speeding in police court here yesterday.

Robert Biscupovitch, 238 Evans, who pleaded not guilty, told Magistrate A. C. Sutton yesterday that there is a "glaring lack of signs" on Trunk Road where he was clocked at 40 by radar in a 30-zone. The magistrate later said city speed limits are 30 unless otherwise marked.

Also in court, part-time taxi driver R. A. Mantion, resident here, was fined $25 for failing to finance.

to yield half the road to oncoming traffic while operating a taxi.

John Congdon, Victoria, admitted fishing in a closed area of Cowichan Bay last Saturday and was fined $25.

Common assault charge against Stanley Toosley; Duncan, was dismissed when the complainant, his wife, failed to appear.

NANAIMO — The federal government will be asked to change one of the NHA regulations to help employment in the area. The Nanaimo winter works committee headed by James Johnstone will seek a relaxation of the regulation which is restrictive to homes served by sewers.

The committee will point out that such a proviso will seriously restrict new homes being built in this area under NHA financing.

The committee, which has worked during the past few years, elected Mr. Johnstone as chairman with National Employment Service assistant manager Ray Lawrence as secretary.

DUNCAN—Native of Victoria, Arthur Stanley Wallace Irvine, 63, died here Wednesday after suffering a heart attack at his oil agency yards at Cowichan Bay.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2 p.m.

Mr. Irvine moved from Victoria to Nanaimo for a short time before coming here in 1928. He was a member of the Cowichan Golf and Country Club.

Surviving are his widow, Isabel; a son, Robert, Duncan; a daughter, Mrs. Gill Bruce, Duncan; three grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. George Lindsay, Vancouver, and Mrs. John Angus, Victoria.

PORT ALBERNI — Harbor commission secretary Ted Vrooman reported that Harry McQuillan, M.P., had visited the commission office this week.

He said that the various installations and improvements which are being carried out here by the federal government at a cost of more than $1,000,000 were the main subjects of discussion.

Also outlined for Mr. McQuillan were works carried out by the commission and plans for further installations which the local body expects to finance.

Little Girl Scalded

A five-year-old Saanich girl was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital yesterday morning for scalds to both thighs, then allowed to go home.

Saanich police, who took Wendy Moon, 3221 Spring Ridge Crescent, to hospital, said she suffered scalds to both legs above the knees when boiling lemonade was spilled in a mishap at her home.

Motorcyclist Recovering

A 17-year-old motorcyclist who crashed into a rock pile beside Happy Valley Road at 8:45 a.m. yesterday is in satisfactory condition at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Wayne Allen of Rocky Point received shoulder and facial injuries in the accident. Police said his motorcycle left the road and struck a rock pile. Allen was brought to hospital by Langford ambulance.

Hand-Guns Cash Stolen

Four hand-guns and $10 in cash were stolen by thieves who broke into Carmichael's Bicycle Shop, 829 Fort, overnight Wednesday, city police reported yesterday.

Besides the $10 taken from the till, the thieves stole a .22 Colt automatic worth $99; a .22 Colt Woodsman automatic valued at $54.95; an S and W .22 automatic worth $79 and a Marksman air pistol worth $10.

Arbitration Boards

Victoria Leaders Win Their Fight

Greater Victoria municipal leaders yesterday won an on-and-off-stage battle with union representatives at New Westminster and Mayor Percy Scourrah said last night "I feel we did pretty well."

The Union of B.C. Municipalities, in convention in the Royal City, endorsed a Victoria resolution said a conciliation board "is not a suitable tribunal" for the purpose of endeavoring to bring about by compromise voluntary agreement between the parties to a labor dispute.

"The policemen and firemen were here in full force lobbying everyone," Mayor Scourrah told the Colonist last night. "We had real opposition too on the floor from labor men in municipal office. But we got it through with a 2-1 majority."

The resolution, which arose

If the UBCM is now successful in representations to the provincial government, the Municipal Act will be amended to provide for appointment of an arbitration board of the type suggested.

BINDER AWARDS

At present conciliation boards make binding awards in such disputes. The Victoria resolution said a conciliation board "is not a suitable tribunal" for the purpose of endeavoring to bring about by compromise voluntary agreement between the parties to a labor dispute.

"The policemen and firemen were here in full force lobbying everyone," Mayor Scourrah told the Colonist last night. "We had real opposition too on the floor from labor men in municipal office. But we got it through with a 2-1 majority."

Ike Gulps Pride, Asks Reds to End Cold War

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

President Eisenhower's United Nations speech appears to be a virtual open invitation to Soviet Premier Khrushchev to call off the cold war. (See full details on Page 3.)

While Eisenhower, in his eight years as president, has suffered a lot of hard knocks as a result of Soviet policy, his farewell speech is more of an appeal for resumption of East-West talks to reduce tensions, than a vehicle for abusing Russian actions.

In his disarmament proposal—that means be found immediately whereby the production of nuclear ingredients for atom bombs be halted—Eisenhower seems to be gently cutting a path which Khrushchev can follow without loss of face.

The proposal is neither so weighty nor so full of contention that Khrushchev can't find a way to accept it without compromising Russian military security.

Both Russia and the U.S. are known to have huge stocks of nuclear bombs, perhaps sufficient to blow up the world or a good part of it. Neither may see much profit in continuing this production. The only major power that might be against an immediate production halt is France—a Western ally still in the early stages as a nuclear power.

And Khrushchev may encounter little international support—should he criticize Eisenhower's proposed expansion of financial and other aid for the United Nations, especially among the newly-emerging African states. The growing confidence in the UN and its Secretary-General, Dag Hammarskjöld, is illustrated by the crushing defeat Russia suffered in trying to censure Hammarskjöld in his actions to bring peace to the Congo.

By speaking first, Eisenhower could have opened a lot of wounds in Khrushchev's side. But he spoke only fleetingly of the frictions in Berlin and the shooting down of the American RB-47 reconnaissance plane off Russia's north coast last July.

The president uttered not a word to repeat accusations that Khrushchev has shattered the Summit Conference in Paris last May or that the Japanese riots which prevented Eisenhower from visiting Tokyo were Communist-inspired.

There was no mention of Communist agitation in Latin America nor of the American contention that Russia is influencing the actions of the Fidel Castro government in Cuba.

The tone of Eisenhower's speech is conciliatory. It seems to be saying the president is prepared to cast aside his hurt pride if the Soviet boss is prepared to do the same.

Ike's Address 'Conciliatory' Says Nikita

NEW YORK (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev said last night that he considered President Eisenhower's address before the United Nations as "conciliatory."

Khrushchev made the statement at a reception given by the Togo Republic.

"The president must have been ashamed of the U2 incident since he did not mention it," Khrushchev said. "He only saw fit to mention the RB-47."

Khrushchev was asked what he thought was affirmative in the speech given by Eisenhower.

UN Battle On China

Shapes Up

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—The United States and Russia headed last night into their first major clash of the "heads of government" United Nations General Assembly session on the question of a seat for Red China. Despite President Eisenhower's deliberately low-keyed and propaganda-free address to the assembly yesterday morning, the start of the East-West word battle seemed inevitable in the 21-member general, or steering, committee.

John D. Definitely UN-Bound

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced late Thursday that he will go to New York Saturday to attend the UN General Assembly.

The prime minister said following a cabinet meeting that he will address the assembly Monday.

SIMILAR ANNOUNCEMENT

The announcement followed closely a similar one from London that Prime Minister Macmillan will go to New York this weekend where he is expected to address the assembly later in the week and also to confer with President Eisenhower, who called Thursday for resumption of disarmament negotiations.

THIRD LEADER

Mr. Diefenbaker was the third Commonwealth head to announce plans to attend the session. Western leaders other than Mr. Eisenhower earlier had given no sign that they would copy the heads of the Communist bloc by appearing at the UN.

Bungling by Ottawa Shocks B.C. Leaders

By TERRY HAMMOND

Top provincial officials are secretly shocked at the bungling manner in which the possible appointment of Defence Minister George Pearkes as lieutenant-governor has been handled by Ottawa.

Navy Sights Red Subs

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States Navy Thursday reported sighting one and probably two submarines operating near a Russian tanker and tug about 400 miles east of Cape Grace, Nfld.

Rescue Set From Island

VANCOUVER (CP)—Four men stranded on a storm-lashed rock late Thursday after their small boat capsized in heavy seas off Cape St. James, at the southern tip of the Queen Charlotte Islands have made their way to a larger island and will be rescued today.

Decision Surprise To City

In a surprise move yesterday Premier Bennett announced his decision to build a third B.C. government ferry to augment the sister ships Mv Sidney and Mv Tsawwassen.

He said business on the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen run had "been better than expected," but would not say how much profit, if any, the Vancouver Island - mainland service has earned.

NO COST FIGURES

The service chalked up gross revenue of $206,781 during the first 15 days of September but no cost figures have been divulged.

He told a press conference he is recommending to the executive council an immediate start on construction of the third vessel.

$3,000,000 JOB

His recommendation is considered tantamount to an order to get the $3,000,000 job underway.

Tenders will be called as soon as specifications for the third vessel are laid down, a relatively simple task because they will not differ materially from specifications for the two existing ferries which went into service earlier this year.

The premier's announcement evoked happy astonishment in Victoria municipal, business and shipbuilding circles.

BUSINESS GOOD

"This is excellent," said Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell, "apparently business is good."

He said the rapid decision to expand the ferry service fleet shows that "Victoria apparently need have no fears that its transportation needs will be neglected."

Chamber of Commerce president M. Aubrey Kent said "this is wonderful news—I'm very glad to see the ferries doing so well."

He said he hopes a local yard will win the construction contract.

HOPE WE GET IT

Harold E. Husband, president of Victoria Machinery Depot Ltd., builder of the Mv Sidney, said "we are delighted—we will bid on it if you may be sure, and I hope we get it."

Victoria Machinery was low bidder when tenders were called for the Sidney, and the firm's price was below that bid by Burrard Drydock Ltd. of Vancouver on the sister ship Mv Tsawwassen.

John A. Wallace, general manager of Yarrow's Ltd., said his firm will also bid on the new ferry. His company entered a joint bid with Burrard Drydock in Vancouver when the first two vessels were built because Yarrow's did not have facilities to construct the hull at its local yard.

Give Data On Control Church Asks

EDMONTON (CP)—The United Church of Canada Thursday night urged the Canadian government to provide information about birth control to countries requesting it.

General council, the church's highest court, approved a resolution which said the "population explosion has been the most neglected social issue of our time."

Abuses 'Shrinking' Unemployment Fund

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—C. A. L. Murchison, Unemployment Insurance Commissioner, said Thursday abuses in connection with unemployment benefits are helping shrink the country's Unemployment Insurance Fund and are causing "concern."

"If they are to stop," he told a press conference, "decisions will have to be made by the government that will be politically damaging."

Lions Gate Dive Fatal

VANCOUVER (CP)—A young woman plunged off the Lions Gate Bridge Thursday and died in the water below.

Old Man Murdered, Girl Cook Charged

WILLIAMS LAKE, B.C. (CP)—A 19-year-old girl cook was charged with murder Thursday after her elderly employer was found shot to death on his lonely ranch.

Train Escapes Firebug's Plot

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—Fire burned away 100 feet of a wooden Pacific Great Eastern Railway trestle Thursday, minutes before a passenger train was to cross. Arson was blamed.

A patrolman spotted the fire on the 600-foot-long, curving trestle over a ravine about nine miles north of here. He radioed the engineer aboard a following train carrying 33 passengers and it stopped at the edge of the trestle.

"We have no alternative but to suspect arson," general manager Joe Broadbent said. The fire was out of control by the time the patrolman saw it.

It took nearly three hours for firemen to arrive and begin extinguishing it. Mr. Broadbent said it would take three days to complete repairs. Freight would be taken meanwhile to Squamish by barge, while passengers went by bus to Horseshoe Bay.
